Meyers on Spot Over U. S. Taxes

WASHINGTON, Nov. 20 (AP) — Bleriot H. Lamarre told Senators today Maj.-Gen. Bennett E. Meyers promised to help him make some "real money" if he would lie to cover up the general's wartime relations with Aviation Electric Co. Lamarre made this statement as he remained unshaken under a barrage of questions from counsel for Meyers on his story that the general took $150,000 out of the company's profits on war subcontracts.

Lamarre was president of Aviation Electric Co., but has testified it was secretly owned by Meyers, former deputy chief of Army Air Force procurement.

The Senate war investigating sub-committee has spent a week inquiring into Meyers' part in affairs of the company. From Lamarre and others it has heard a story of company officials ostensibly getting big salaries but required to "kick back" most of the money to Meyers.

PAID $50 A WEEK

Lamare said he actually got $50 a week from the $31.000 annual pay listed for him on the company's books.

As the Senate committee went ahead with its inquiry, a prospective department of justice crackdown on income tax charges hung over Meyers. Aty. Gen. Clark said, last night, he will ask indictment of Meyers as soon as the Senate group winds up its hearings.

Lamarre testified yesterday that Meyers came to his home in July and they worked out a false story intended to explain away Meyers' profits from the company. He said the general told him they would both be called before the Senate group and must agree on what they would testify.

Lamarre said he and Meyers worked out an account of their relations which they hoped would explain away Meyers' profits from the company.

Lamarre said the dapper general told him "the only way we would avoid risks to both of us was to tell the same story."

"Did you and Gen. Meyers sit in your living room and concoct a story that would be perjury before the committee?" Ferguson asked.

"That's when it started," Lamarre replied.

"Did you come before this committee in October, 1947, in executive session and tell the concocted story?" Ferguson asked.

"I did that," Lamarre acknowledged.

He said he subsequently talked to Francis Flannagan, assistant committee counsel, who told him: "It was evident to the committee the story was not true."

"He then talked with an attorney who was a friend of his, Lamarre said, and later Flannagan "showed the testimony to my attorney and my attorney said I had no alternative but to come back and tell the truth."

BALKED AT COVER-UP

Lamarre's brother-in-law, T. E. Readnower, who described himself as the dummy vice president of the firm, said Meyers tried to sell him on a cover-up story but that he refused to go along.

"I told him I did not think the story would stand up," said Readnower, whose sister is Lamarre's wife and formerly was Meyers' secretary. "There were too many discrepancies in it."

Both Readnower and Lamarre have testified that the major portions of the salaries listed as theirs actually went to Meyers.

Carmine S. Bellino, an auditor working on the committee staff, said Meyers' total receipts from the firm during the war years were $150,199.64.

NETA DAVIS, WITNESS
Says Meyers Paid $10,00)

Bellino testified that $26,6#0.41 turned up in a bank account maintained jointly by Meyers and his wife, the former Ila Rae Curnutt, soon after the firm paid Mrs. Meyers' father about $29,000 of company funds.

Absent Windsors Visiting in N. Y.

NEW YORK, Nov. 20 (AP)—The Duke and Duchess of Windsor, only members of Britain's royal family not present at Princess Elizabeth's wedding to the newly created Duke of Edinburgh, were in New York today far from the tumultuous celebrating in London.

When the bride's uncle, who gave up his throne to marry the former Wallis Warfield, arrived here several weeks ago with his American-born duchess, he dismissed all questions about their absence from the wedding festivities by saying it was a family matter.

It was not known whether they listened to the broadcast of the event.

Paris Cemetery to Close As GI Bodies Depart

PARIS, Nov. 20 (AP)—Blosville Cemetery, opened on D-Day in Normandy, will be closed Sunday and the bodies of the 5593 Americans who fell in the sector will be returned to their kin.

The dead include members of the 82nd Tirborne Division, for whom the cemetery was opened after the fall of Ste. Mere Eglise to U. S. troops; the 101st Airborne, the Fourth, Eighth, Ninth, 79th, 83rd, and 90th Infantry Divisions, the Fourth and Sixth Armored Divisions, and the Fourth Cavalry Reconnaissance Squadron.

Marshall Off For Big 4 London Parley

WASHINGTON, Nov. 19 (AP)—State Sec. Marshall leaves for London today to put American policy toward Russia to a new and perhaps crucial test.

Traveling in President Truman's original plane, The Scared Cow, Marshall scheduled a 1 p. m. takeoff for the Big Four foreign ministers' conference. His chief traveling companion is Charles E. Bohlen, State Dept. counselor and veteran adviser on Soviet relations.

Marshall's announced goal is the same elusive objective of four previous sessions: (1) Agreement with Russian Foreign Minister Molotov on a peace treaty with Austria and (2) a decision on at least the main outlines of a German settlement.

But while those are the immediate problems, the underlying issue is the mounting tension between Russia and the Western powers.

Pointing up that issue, the Brookings Institution, a private research and educational agency, declared in a report made public today that a continuation of the present nightmare of Big-Power relations could result in war at any time.

The foreign ministers' sessions ended in complete stalemate on both the German and Austrian questions.

This time, if Russia again balks, France may join the United States and Great Britain in setting up a trizonal area engaging their combined occupation zones in western Germany.

Comr. Curley Hits Wage Critic

Public Works Comr. Robert P. Curley declared today he had sought repeatedly to have salaries equalized in his department and have his employes given salary increases.

Curley was charged with hostility and indifference to his employes, disregard of their grievances and problems and refusal to pay equal salaries for equal work yesterday by William V. Ward, head of the American Federation of State, County and Municipal Employes.

"Mr. Ward should concern himself with getting my employes decent wages," Curley declared today.

"When a department head is forced to champion the cause of the laborer, who gets only $35 a week to provide for his family, it is time for Mr. Ward and his associates to quit."

France Calls Troops, Blum to Call Cabinet

PARIS, Nov. 20 (AP)—France recalled to the colors part of the 1947 military class to bring the Army up to "normal strength" today as President Auriol looked to Leon Blum to form a strong, stable government.

The recall order, broadcast over the national radio chain, brought about 140,000 more troops into the army at a time when the government was trying to stem a spreading strike wave. Half of the 1947 contingent of troops, not due to be demobilized until spring, was freed a few months ago to provide manpower for industry and agriculture.

Auriol was reported to have completed his consultations with party leaders who flocked to the Elysees Palace until late last night after the resignation of Premier Ramadier and again throughout this morning.

Approximately 500,000 workers were reported on strike throughout France

Lawrence Sex-Slaying Goes to Jury

LAWRENCE, Nov. 20—The superior court jury which has been hearing the trial of Vincent P. Dellechiaie, 22, charged with the sex murder of 7-year-old Louise Ann Kurpel Sept. 7, retired to deliberate his fate today after Judge Abraham E. Pinanski warned it to exclude "sympathy or compassion" in arriving at a verdict.

The jurist instructed the jurors they were empowered to find Dellechiaie not guilty of murder, or guilty of murder in the first or second degree.

The veteran's mother, Mrs. Mary Dellechiaie, who testified for him yesterday in the closing hours, listened to Judge Pinanskis' charge through the open door of an adjacent room. Yesterday she sat behind the prisoner's cage holding her son's hand.

Beacon Hill Fire Ruins Old Records

Invaluable oil paintings and records of the National Society of Mayflower Descendants were destroyed today in a fire which swept the seven-story building of the New England Historical Genealogical Society in Ashburton pl., Beacon Hill. A short circuit was blamed for the blaze.

William Carroll Hill, secretarw of the society, said the flames cleaned out the rear sixth and seventh floor corner of the building, ruining records of membership, old books and portraits. The Mayflower Society's library and the office of the general secretary were wiped out.

Damage to these two rooms was estimated at $15,000, while smoke and water damage to other valuable documents is expected to be even greater.

Million Line Streets, Skies Clear As Elizabeth Weds

By TOM WILLIAMS

LONDON, Nov. 20 (AP) — Princess Elizabeth and her beloved, the newly-named Duke of Edinburgh, were married today in the solemnity of Westminster Abbey and rode back to Buckingham Palace to the cheers of a million Britons beneath a clearing sky. The wedding day, greatest occasion for Britons since George VI became King, brought a bright splash of color to the fabric of a nation rent by bombs and economic crisis. Elizabeth, her face radiant above an ivory satin gown embroidered with thousands of pearls wore a diamond tiara and a lipstick suited to television cameras.

BRIDAL HAIRDO — An artist illustrates how Princess Elizabeth appeared in coiffure created for her bridal by Parisian stylist Antonio. Light gold crown with string of diamonds and pendant over forehead gives her queenly touch.

Before the Archbishop of Canterbury and backed by a crowd of nearly 3000 kings, peers and commoners, the 21-year-old bride promised to love, cherish and obey her 26-year-old betrothed.

The bridegroom, Lt. Philip Mountbatten of the royal navy and a former Prince of Greece, is now "His Royal Highness" and a duke, earl and baron. King GeorgeVI knighted him yesterday.

Queen Mother Mary saw her granddaughter married. Absent from the ceremony were the Duke of Windsor whose abdication brought Elizabeth's father to the throne and made her heiress presumptive, and the American-born, twice-divorced duchess.

Brief patches of blue sky appeared as the wedding began, after an early morning drizzle.

The Archbishop of Canterbury, primate of all England, intoned the words: "I now pronounce that they are man and wife" at 11:45 a. m. (6:45 a. m. Boston time) as the bride and bridegroom knelt before the altar.

CHEERS DROWN BELLS

In the traditional words of the church of England marriage service, Princess Elizabeth and the Duke promised to love and to cherish each other for better or for worse, in sickness and in health until death. Their responsive "I wills" to the Archbishop's questions were barely audible in the crowded abbey.

(Radio listeners had better luck, the responses being clearly audible).

As the two left the Abbey, churchbells rang out, only to be drowned in the welcoming roar of the waiting thousands outside.

Prime Minister Attlee and his predecessor, Winston Churchill, smiled at the young couple as they passed up the aisle after signing the marriage register in the chapel of St. Edward the Confessor, founder of the Abbey.

When the Princess and her bridegroom entered the royal coach for the return trip to Buckingham Palace, the relief of the two young pages—Prince William of Gloucester and Prince Michael of Kent—became evident. They had been having some difficulty with the Princess' train.

On the way back to the Palace, both the Princess and the Duke waved at the throngs of people along the route. Many of these had waited all night and been soaked in an intermittent drizzle.

The 21-year-old Princess was radiant with happiness as she appeared for the ceremony in a mist of dewy white satin. Her gown sparkled with a thousand lights reflected, softened and shaded in a delicate embroidery of crystal and pearls.

Waiting for her in the lantern, at the foot of the steps to the

IT'S HER SPOT

LONDON, Nov. 20 (AP)—Miss Sofia Ballard, 73, clutching a vacuum bottle of tea and a packet of sandwiches, took up her usual position last night—by a lamp post midway between Buckingham Palace and the admiralty arch. She has been at the same spot for every royal "do" since Queen Victoria's funeral in 1901, she said.

Thousands of Pearls Glitter On Ivory Satin Bridal Gown

LONDON, Nov. 20 (AP)—The rich classic wedding gown in which Princess Elizabeth became a bride today will go on public exhibition soon and eventually is destined to take its place in the Victoria and Albert Museum with the gowns of earlier Queens and Princesses. The 21-year-old bride was radiant in ivory duchesse satin, thickly embroidered with thousands of pearls. A palace official said the cost of the gown was "something under 200 pounds ($800) but it appeared considerably more expensive to correspondents who, pledged to secrecy, viewed it in advance of the wedding.

The pearls alone seemed worth much more than the palace official's estimate of the cost of the ehtire gown. There were thousands of pearls. Officials of Hartnell's, where it was made, said their records did not disclose the exact number.

The skirt was decorated with myriad flowers and stars, each of them studded with seed pearls. Each design had a pea-sized pearl in the center.

The gown had a closely fitted bodice, a pearl-bordered heart-shaped neckline and long, tight sleeves. The pointed waistline was caught with a girdle of pearl-embroidered star flowers.

The skirt was full, swirling and set with pearl-and-crystal designs inspired by the paintings of the Florentine Artist Botticelli. Just below the waist it was entwined with garlands of white York roses, symbolic of the House of York, over which Elizabeth's father presided before he became King George VI, and heads of wheat, with pearls representing each grain.

The wheat motif is an ancient symbol of fertility, and a reminder that a task of the heiress-presumtive to the throne is to

Boy Prince Stumbles Holding Beth's Train

By RUSSELL LANDSTROM

LONDON, Nov. 20 (AP)—Elizabeth, future Queen of Britain, never more fair, was radiantly happy at her wedding. In the few seconds of quiet granted to her and her bridegroom before the return procession to Buckingham Palace, she confided to intimates that she was overwhelmed by the drama of the ceremony rooted in the nation's finest traditions.

Her lips trembled slightly—and Philip obviously was nervous too—as the couple received first the congratulations of closest kin and then the thunderous ovation of the multitude outside the abbey, most sacred of British shrines.

Except for one slight mishap—which many did not notice because of their obscured positions in the Abbey's architecturally intricate interior—the wedding service, meticulously planned weeks ahead of time and rehearsed last night, ascended to its impressive climax without hitch.

The sole mischance came as the bridal party moved slowly from the altar, up carpeted steps, to the Chapel of St. Edward the Confessor, who founded Westminster Abbey.

Little Prince Michael of Kent, a page, stumbled twice, tugging at the bride's long lacy train but not losing his grip. Quickly Princess Margaret Rose, chief bridesmaid, stepped forward and steadied the child.

Momentarily confused, Michael shot a glance at his mother, the elegant Duchess seated with Elizabeth's family on the north side of the sanctuary, and then passed on while the organist drove full power into a psalm of praise.

That was a human touch to the stately, colorful ritual, which seemed to take hold of every heart in the majestic cathedral where so much of Britain's genius of ages gone is entombed.

Some of Queen Mary's eighty years seemed to fall the while she witnessed the marriage of the granddaughter she idolizes. She was a regal figure of bygone reigns. She was supremely poised but from time to time betrayed those feelings she knows how to conceal by rapid turnings of her head, a shift from one foot to the other.

GIs in Reich Happy as U.S. Starts to Hit Back at Russia

By AUSTEN LAKE
Boston American Staff Correspondent

BERLIN (With the U. S. Occupation Force)—A general, though still gentle, stiffening in U. S. policy toward Russia's aggressive propaganda campaign is being received with grim satisfaction by our occupation troops, who for many months have chewed their cuffs over the insidious blather of studied falsehood circulated by Russian ether spouters and their controlled German press.

Opinion in the U. S. zone and Berlin sector is that Secretary of State Marshall's warning that the United States will no longer submit to Russia's "brazen and contemptuous propaganda" which "is aimed at prolonging Europe's plight indefinitely" will tend to improve rather than worsen relations between the two nations.

American overseas consensus is that Russia has been encouraged to a gradual crescendo of falsehood by our docile acceptance of such slurs, which have been accelerated in proportion as we submitted to well organized lies. U. S. liaison officers whose business it is to deal directly with Russians in interzonal matters tell me that our meek silence toward Moscow's sneers and untruths is regarded by Russians as (1) an admission of truth and (2) a sign of weakness. "The more we take, the more they dish it out" said one long-term officer whose duties take him daily into the Russian zone.

ROAR PROPAGANDA

Oddly enough almost all of these Russian-speaking, U. S. liaison men tell me that, with few exceptions, the Russians whom they contact in their work are friendly, co-operative (except in matters of top-policy) and eager to learn what they can of the U. S. way of life. "Their experiences outside Russia have given them new ideas" said one American major. "They are genuinely hungry for information of how we live. They like to feel the texture of our uniforms. They ask how much food we get and how well we're paid. They are ripe for a broad program of informational material about the U. S. A. and are in a receptive mood. Yet we tell them nothing."

Every day, all day long and most of the evening, Russia's radio stations in Berlin, Leipzig and Moscow roar propaganda in German and English—powerful frequencies which blanket the entire U. S. and British zones. They're almost impossible to fade out by twisting the dials—as blatant a line of prevarication as ever polluted the air and against which the two feeble U. S. stations at Frankfurt and Munich are helpless as kittens against a tom cat.

Until 10 days ago these two American stations made no attempt to counter the Russian hoopla, merely limiting their daily blather to a stream of hot-lick music, a few 15-minute world news

SENTENCED—Mrs. Evelyn Cote, 25, of Laconia, N. H., who was sentenced to two to three years imprisonment on manslaughter charge. She was found guilty of feeding her three-year-old son, William, a tablespoonful of black pepper as "punishment." He died of asphyxiation.

Woman Freed In $780 Theft

In a sealed verdict given to Judge Felix Forte, a superior court jury today acquitted Mrs. Sylvia Cummings, 38, Exeter st., Arlington, of a charge of larceny in the theft of $780 and the wallet of a New York salesman who had placed it under the mattress in his hotel room.

She had appealed from a conviction in lower court and an indeterminate sentence to Women's Reformatory. Mrs. Cummings admitted she had gone to the room of Julius Heineman, 50, but denied she had taken the wallet, containing the money, while the salesman had retired for a few moments to the washroom.

Somerville Police Hunt Slugger Thief

Somerville police today were searching for the man who allegedly slugged and robbed William Griggs, 55, Broadway, Somerville, an employe of the city, of $38.

Griggs told police he was struck a blow on the right side of his face that knocked him down. He described the man as being about 30, 6 ft. 1 in., dark complexion, wearing dungarees and no hat.

Holdup Killing Denied by Convict

An escaped Virginia convict, picked up by police in the drive to halt the wave of recent holdups which climaxed with the murder of Nathan Binder, South End haberdasher, last Monday, denied all knowledge of the slaying today in the police lineup.

Giving his name as George E. Baker, 52, Tremont st., South End, he declared he had "toed the mark" for 10 years since he fled from a Virginia chain gang in 1937. He said he had come to Boston from Norfolk our years ago.

He explained some $900 in his possession as the proceeds of the sale of the lodging house where he now lives. He said the house had been owned by his wife, who died a few months ago.

Baker told Lt. James V. Crowley that he had been sentenced to the Virginia State penitentiary for murder of a man in a street brawl and was pardoned by the Governor in 1022 or 1923.

He said he was returned to the prison in 1933 after being convicted of a store break and escaped after serving four years of a 10-year sentence.

He was held for further questioning.

Two Negroes, one of whom said he was an entertainer and the other listing his occupation as "various," also appeared in the lineup but denied being involved in the $300 holdup of the Northampton Public Market last Tuesday.

Quiz Taxi Operators After Man Loses $1000

Roxbury police continued checking with local taxicab operators today in an endeavor to recover the wallet containing $1000 which Herman Goldberg, 29, Harlem st., Roxbury, a marketman, stated he lost in Roxbury.

Goldberg told police he had the wallet when he hired a taxi but it was missing by the time he got home.

Girl Replies in Court To Mother's Charge

Accused by her mother of neglecting her baby to engage in gay revels and drinking parties with male companions, Mrs. Eleanor Kelley, 21, a Back Bay waitress, took the stand to tell her own story in Suffolk Superior Court today.

The curley haired brunette, who lives alone in the Back Bay, is under a three-month jail sentence imposed in South Boston court which she appealed.

She was originally placed on probation on a charge of neglecting her son, Robert, 2, but was given the jail term when she allegedly took an unauthorized trip out of town.

DESERTED BY MATE

During the war she married a soldier, who deserted her shortly after the child was born, it was testified before Judge Edward Morley and a jury.

The girl's mother, Mrs. Eleanor E. Harney, of O'Callaghan way, South Boston, widow of a doctor and employed by the City Health Dept., wept as she testified she loved her daughter better than herself but that she seeks custody of the baby in order to save the girl from her own folly.

The young waitress displayed no emotion as her mother sobbed out a story of the girl's "affairs" with other men, one of whom is married.

APPEALS IGNORED

Mrs. Harney, under cross-examination by Atty. Louis Goldstein, testified she brought a custody petition in probate court "only to get my grandson and daughter ironed out."

"I've been both mother and father to my daughter since she was nine years old," she added. "I've tried to reach her heart, but she doesn't respond."

In answer to a question by Atty. Goldstein, Mrs. Harney said she took up against her daughter, "when boy friends and liquor came into her life and took her away from her baby."

Mrs. Harney testified, "She has not been in a balanced frame of mind. Within two weeks she had an affair with two men. A married man, with whom she was in love, arranged some housing for her in Samoset st., and acknowledged this to his wife."

"TOY" OF SUITOR

She testified her daughter was a "toy" for the married man and that she decided court action was necessary to save her daughter from herself.

Earlier, a brother of the defendant, Robert E. Harney, testified his sister spent more time with a "Mr. Tierney" than she did with her own baby.

He said that when his mother remonstrated with her, she answered that she would "take the consequences" if anything happened to the child.

Once, after a disappearance of 16 days, the brother testified, his sister and her child were found with a man in an unfurnished apartment in Emerson st., South Boston.

Blind Student (Left) Gets Braille Books to Study for Hearst Newspapers American History Championships

Special Oral Quiz for Blind Boy in Hearst History Test

By JIM MORTON
Special to the Boston Record-American

NEW YORK, Nov. 20—The misfortune of being totally blind will not stop Robert Whitstock, 17, from competing for scholastic honors when the Hearst American History championships open here next week.

The youth, robbed of his sight by a boyhood accident, had sought permission to participate in the annual contest among New York's 81 public high schools.

As a student at the N. Y. Institute for the Education of the Blind, a private school, however, Whitstock was not ordinarily eligible.

"I hadn't any notions about winning the Hearst Awards, but wanted to see how my knowledge of history stands up against the ability of regular students," he said.

The Board of Education today granted the blind youth his wish.

By special arrangement, a teacher will read the test questions to Robert, and record his answers.

Competing on even terms with history-wise students hand-picked from New York's classrooms will tax the boy's ability to the utmost.

He will have to do his cramming on Braille.

"I've read a lot of American history in Braille," Whitstock said, "and pray I can make as good a showing as Ed Lewinson did last year."

Lewinson, sightless Detroit pupil, won wide acclaim by placing third in the Hearst competition in that area a year ago.

Eloping Teacher, Girl Hunt Turns To Atlantic City

The elopement search for Warren C. Chamberlain, 35, young married dramatics teacher, and his 18-year-old pupil, Roslyn Siegel, of Maple st., Roxbury, turned to Atlantic City today after the young art school student called one of her friends from Elizabeth, N. J., and said she was bound for the popular New Jersey resort.

Although the couple vanished Tuesday, a warrant charging Chamberlain with abduction of Miss Siegel was issued only yesterday.

Another warrant was also issued for the young girl, charging her as a runaway. Her stepfather, Ralph Cutter, had appealed to Judge Daniel Gillen for this warrant.

MADE SECOND CALL

Police learned from one of Roslyn's closest friends that she was in New York Tuesday night after leaving classes at the Bishop Lee School, Beacon Hill, that morning. At that time Roslyn said she was going to New Jersey, and a call from that state was received later.

Chamberlain's wife of six years, Ann Chamberlain of Commonwealth ave., Back Bay, a secretary in a business office, appeared in court when the warrants were issued.

MET LAST SUMMER

Teacher and pupil, friends told police, met for the first time last summer in a radio studio where Chamberlain was writing scripts. Roslyn, who was studying dramatics at the time, became friendly with the teacher and was surprised several months later to discover that he was on the faculty of the Bishop Lee School where she had enrolled.

Police described the young girl, graduated from Jeremiah E. Burke High School last year, as 5 feet, 7 inches, 120 pounds, with curly, black hair. Chamberlain was described as 6 feet, with dark complexion and curly hair. He served as an Army sergeant for two years with a traveling show as a radio technician.

One report received by police was that the young student recently withdrew $1500 from her savings account.

DELEGATE—Hazel Jacobson, Malden nurse, attends convention of Mass. State Nurses' Ass'n, and other nursing organizations in the Hotel Statler. The groups seek 40-hour week and better working conditions.

MUSICAL HOLDUP

OMAHA, Nov. 20 (AP)—Two would-be holdup men fled from a children's goods store here without their loot when a musical toy dropped to the floor with a jangle of bells.

Police theorized the robbers must have mistaken the bells for a burglar alarm. As the manager was being forced to go to a rear room to open a safe, he inadvertedly touched a stack of musical toys, and one fell to the floor, its bells ring. One holdup man cried "Let's get out of here," and both fled, leaving behind $20 already taken from a cash register.

Mrs. Coffin's Friends, Servants Quizzed for Jewel Theft Clue

DARTMOUTH, Nov. 20—Assistance of guests and servants who were present during recent house parties at the $100,000 estate of Mr. and Mrs. Richard N. Coffin here was sought today in the search for clues to the $200,000 jewelry robbery at the lonely waterfront mansion.

A growing army of investigators, including local police, state detectives, FBI agents and insurance company sleuths, spread a net for the bandit trio that extended into the underworlds of Boston, New York and other major cities.

The detectives had under surveillance known fences specializing in disposing of stolen jewelry and believed to be already implicated in the crime or soon to be contacted by the gang.

$500,000 COLLECTION

The gems were part of a $500,000 collection owned by Mrs. Coffin, former Broadway showgirl and dancer who married Coffin, 24, and scion of a New Bedford fortune, in Florida in August, 1946.

Most puzzling angle in the robbery was the failure of a burglar alarm siren to function, detectives said. A big siren atop the house was wired to the hidden wall safe, designed to sound an alarm if the strongbox was not opened properly.

The bandit trio, lying in wait in the living quarters as the young couple drove home from Boston, went to the master bedroom and removed a large picture which concealed the wall safe.

Mrs. Coffin's jewel collection was one of the largest in New England and only part was kept at her home, the remainder being in bank vaults. Total insurance carried on the collection was $500,000. One of the stolen items was the $100,000 Amati diamond, 11th largest in the world.

UNDER DOCTOR'S CARE

Mrs. Coffin said she was certain the crime was planned by "someone not very far away, someone who knows us very well. There was someone over those three bandits who told them all about us."

Her husband, a Navy officer during the war, is still under a doctor's care for head injuries inflicted by the bandits.

Entrance of the FBI into the case was taken as evidence that the gang will seek to sell their loot to big-city dealers in stolen gems. The federal agents joined the search on the presumption that the bandits have crossed state lines with their booty.

That some of the better known items in the stolen collection, particularly the 31.31 carat Amati diamond, would be cut up into smaller gems was the opinion of Boston experts.

Father Saves 2 In Circus Fall

MIAMI, Fla., Nov. 20 (AP)—A 65-year-old father suffered a broken neck but probably saved the lives of his son and daughter as they toppled from the high wire while performing a bicycle riding act in the Ringling Bros. and Barnum & Bailey circus here.

Charles Alzanas received a broken neck when the bodies of his son, Harold, 21, and daughter, Hilda, 16, struck him when the pair fell from a wire 33 feet above ground. The son suffered a fractured vertebrae in the spine. The daughter was bruised and shaken.

The father, watching from the ring, ran beneath them and their bodies struck him. Doctors said his action probably saved their lives.

Waldorf

Fruit and Nut Muffins . . chock-full of

HEALTH and VIGOR

FIFTEEN YEARS AGO we introduced to our customers our now famous Fruit and Nut Health Muffin. Never before, or since, has any bakery item in our long list of good things to eat so completely captured the fancy of the people, and as the months go by we find ourselves baking more and more of them.

● Now as I glance over this list of the rich and nourishing ingredients that go into every Fruit and Nut Muffin it's easy to understand the reason. For in those luscious big, brown muffins, each one with a maraschino cherry on top, there are fresh egg yolks, dates, walnuts, raisins, maple syrup, all mixed with 100% whole wheat flour and rich sweet milk. Surely you will agree that they are chock-full of goodness, carbohydrates, proteins, and all the rest.

● But, to me, the finest quality about Waldorf Fruit and Nut Health Muffins is the delicious flavor! It's a flavor difficult to describe, and do them justice. So perhaps it's best just to say they taste so good that our customers relish them for breakfast, dinner, and supper, and particularly during the mid-afternoon with a cup of tea.

● Grown folks like them, both men and women. And as for the kiddies who come in with their parents, just glance around any of our cafeterias. If there are children there, and there generally are, it's dollars to doughnuts that a good portion of them will be busily downing one of those tempting-looking Fruit and Nut Muffins, each youngster with that gleam in his eye that spells, in any language, "Lickin' good!"

Truman Plea To N. E. Parley Is Teamwork

President Truman declared today teamwork was needed from New England and other sections of the country to solve the nation's problems and meet its responsibilities to the rest of the world.

In a letter to the 23d New England Conference, which opened a two-day session at Hotel Statler, the President told governors and business leaders of New England the most vital problems confronting the nation were rising prices and the need for aiding western European nations.

"Understanding of the problems we face and co-operation in solving them is essential," his message said. "Teamwork is what we need from all groups and sections of the country—teamwork of the kind we have come to expect from the annual conference of the New England Council.

"The eyes of the nation were on New England during those weeks of forest fires in September and October and we all felt proud of the job that was done—a magnificent demonstration of neighborliness and American teamwork.

"As a nation we are faced today with a crisis even more grave, though less dramatic than forest fire. And the eyes, as well as the hopes of the world are upon us."

Gov. Hildreth of Maine told the conferencet hat, despite the tragic forest fires, his State still had ample forest land for recreational facilities and enough supplies to support its industries.

Robert R. Young, chairman of the board of the Chesapeake and Ohio Railwoy, warned the conference that Americans must put the nation's finances in sound order.

Richard L. Bowditch, president of C. H. Sprague & Son Co. of Boston, was re-elected president of the council.

$450,000 Push Puts Fund Over

By an all out stretch drive, the 1948 Greater Boston Community Fund campaign went "over the top" with a total collection of $6,603,415, or 101.1 per cent of the goal.

This was announced by Chairman Philip H. Theopold, who told 1000 volunteer workers at a Victory Dinner at the Hotel Statler that more than $450,000 was collected in the final hours of the annual campaign.

Theopold's announcement that the $6,600,000 drive has been oversubscribed by more than $3000 brought the large audience to its feet and an outburst of cheering filled the large ballroom.

Theopold also announced that Powell M. Cabot, of Dover, one of the most active members in the drive, had been named as chairman for next year's committee.

NOT SAFE IN JAIL

REDWOOD CITY, Cal., Nov. 20 (AP)—A man who was in jail on a drunk charge when George Conner was fatally shot during an automobile ride was accused of his murder today.

Jadwiga Curtin, 20, Polish refugee war bride of a Montana soldier, and Howard Durham, 27, were charged in warrants signed by Chief Deputy Sheriff Walter Moore who said:

"We are working on the assumption that both of them were out to rob Conner.

"If he (Durham) conspired to commit robbery and a murder was committed, he was actually guilty of murder although he was in jail at the time."

The young woman was jailed after she was found sitting beside Conner in his wrecked automobile last month. He had died from a bullet wound.

Changing Over

TO NEW TELEPHONE NUMBERING PLAN IN GREATER BOSTON

(When dialing a call, you will dial two letters and five figures)

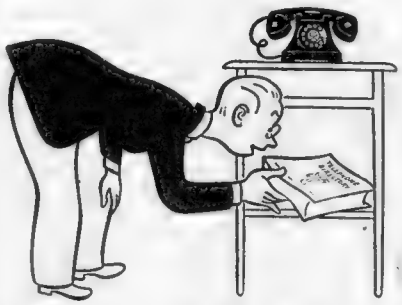
Deliveries of the new Boston and Vicinity Telephone Directories are beginning today.

When you receive your directory, that will be your notice to start calling by the new numbering plan — using two letters and five figures to dial a number instead of the three letters and four figures you have been using. In giving a number to an operator, you simply add the figure to the central office name. (Remember that three central office names have been changed: ARNold to JAmaica 4; RUGgles to HIghlands 2, and PERkins to WAtertown 3.)

The change is minor. Here's how the whole family might pitch in on the new plan as soon as the new directory arrives at your house.

4 steps to take when you get your new directory



1 POP . . . puts the new directory in place . . . cautions the family to look up every number since all central office names now have a figure added to them.

2 JUNIOR . . . removes the red and white number plate from the dial telephone, revealing the family's new number on the black and white plate underneath.

3 MOM . . . revises the list of numbers the family frequently calls, according to the way they are listed in the directory under the new plan.

4 SIS . . . tries out the new plan . . . looks up the number, dials by using two letters and a figure to signify the central office name.

"It's a cinch"

Under the new numbering plan, you simply substitute a figure for the third letter of the central office name in dialing. In giving a number to an operator, you just add a figure to the central office name. For example: HANcock 9981 becomes HAncock 6-9981. This is dialed HA 6 9981; spoken, "Hancock Six — Nine, Nine, Eight, One." Use the new plan at home or at the office when your new directory comes.

Women Cheer Loudest at Bridal Guests

By MARY COYLE OSMUN

LONDON, Nov. 20 (AP)—The royal wedding was a women's show, from the bride in her glittering tiara of diamonds, to the old, old Cockney woman, who bedecked her bedraggled self with red, white and blue rosettes.

It was the women who cried out with close to tearful appreciation at sight of the magnificent mounted Guardsmen, whose sleep horses and red, white and gold uniforms first broke the monotony of the bleak day, the gray, tired crowds.

It was the women who cheered loudest for the wedding guests—Churchill, Eden and Smuts, in that order.

It was the women whose breaths caught at the sight of 3-year-old Richard, son of the duke and duchess of Gloucester. Dressed in a white bunny coat, the pretty blond boy stood at the window of a limousine and solemnly waved his fingers.

Women set up housekeeping along the route of the royal cortege. Hundreds heard Big Ben strike the hours 11 times. They camped all night on boxes, wrapped in blankets. They kept their children warm and shushed and fed them out of the British canvas carry-alls which can hold, shapelessly, the necessaries of life.

Many women had seen all the rolay weddings of their generation. They gathered from all parts of the United Kingdom—from Wales, for instance, paying $6 to ride all night in a bus to London, and they'll be back home to cook breakfast in the morning.

It was the women who beamed with pride on their royalty.

"Our King and Queen always sit on the edge of the carriage seat so everybody can see 'em," said one Londoner. "Those wretched foreign royalty—they're always being potted at by some blighter or other in their own countries and they're scared."

It was the women who fainted, keeling over quietly and as quietly carried away by the uniformed ambulance corps.

From the golden bird of paradise feathers on the Countess Mountbatten's hat to the hand-knit stocking caps on school girls, the guests and spectators modeled all the styles of the last decade.

Dowager dutchesses in old limousines wore ancient jewels and ancient furs. More fashionable wedding gusets wore velvet, feathered or flowered hats and mink and fox over dressmaker suits or simple dresses.

In the crowd were represented a hundred furs, from sable to cat. Women dressed to keep warm in boots, slacks and heavy scarves, with sometimes a little flag or a tiny bunch of violets for dressup.

It was a women's show and the women loved it.

BACKACHE, LEG PAINS MAY BE DANGER SIGN

Of Tired Kidneys

If backache and leg pains are making you miserable, don't just complain and do nothing about them. Nature may be warning you that your kidneys need attention.

The kidneys are Nature's chief way of taking excess acids and poisonous waste out of the blood. They help most people pass about 3 pints a day.

If the 15 miles of kidney tubes and filters don't work well, poisonous waste matter stays in the blood. These poisons may start nagging backaches, rheumatic pains, leg pains, loss of pep and energy, getting up nights, swelling, puffiness under the eyes, headaches and dizziness. Frequent or scanty passages with smarting and burning sometimes shows there is something wrong with your kidneys or bladder.

Don't wait! Ask your druggist for Doan's Pills, a stimulant diuretic, used successfully by millions for over 50 years. Doan's give happy relief and will help the 15 miles of kidney tubes flush out poisonous waste from the blood. Get Doan's Pills.

Honeymoon Haven Ringed By Guards

ROMSEY, Eng., Nov. 20 (AP) – Spacious Broadlands mansion was staffed today to offer a honeymoon haven for Princess Elizabeth and the Duke of Edinburgh. A specially-reinforced corps of detectives and police was posted around the estate, the home of Earl Mounthatten, the bridegroom's uncle. The carefully chosen servants had strict orders to give the young couple peace, privacy and quiet

Sentry boxes were set up at the gates.

In the main streets of this old village, bunting and pennants fluttered in a muggy southwest wind. A banner strung between trees on the avenue leading to Broadlands said "welcome to Romsey."

Within the Georgian mansion, servants dusted the old masters which line the long passages and bedecked the lofty, white-walled rooms of the royal suite with flowers

Outside, pheasant and grouse wandered in the meadows and parklands. The lawn sweeping down from the house was green and bright, the yew hedges in the garden were clipped and neat Beside the main door blossomed a single rose

Frank Randall, long time butler at the estate, fretted over a butler's problem

Scanning the stock of food laid in for the Princess and the Duke, Randall said:

"I hope they bring their ratoin books with them—I had to get the groceries on tick."

"He Asked for it!"

It had been love at first sight. He was so attractive—such a good dancer, too. Why did he let "B.O." (body odor) spoil everything? . . . So often "B.O." can come between people to ruin social and business success. Why risk offending? A daily bath with Lifebuoy is all it takes to give all-over, long-lasting protection against "B.O." And remember—Lifebuoy Health Soap is the one soap especially made to stop "B.O."

keep the line of succession intact.

Between the strands of roses and wheat were bands of orange blossoms and star flowers in pearls, appliqued on transparent tulle. The same motif was carried out in a three-band hem border.

The full court train was 15 feet long, embroidered similarly, and fashioned of ivory silk tulle. The white veil of tulle was clasped with a tiara of pearls and diamonds. The shoes were one piece self-lined satin sandals employing the same materials as the gown and fastened by silver, pearl-studded buckles.

EIGHT BRIDESMAIDS

The eight bridesmaids wore gowns of ivory silk tulle with tight bodices shirred down the front, and billowing skirts embroidered with clusters of mock orange in satin, carrying out the effect of the Princess' train.

For her wedding trip the Princess had a silk dress, a traveling coat and a high felt beret, all in the smoky-blue shade called "love-in-the-mist."

The dress was simply styled, with a cross-over bodice draped to a bow on the left hip. It had three large buttons on the left side. The skirt was full and modern. The traveling coat of velour, milled of Yorkshire wool, has soft revers and rounded shoulders. Inset bands across the front are held with there buttons, and the skirt is permitted to flare moderately.

The Princess' traveling shoes, the same color as the rest of her ensemble, are of elastized suede. The blue hat is trimmed with an ostrich pompom and curved quills in blue tones.

The Queen wore an apricot and gold supple lame dress, with a hip-length cape of sable over her shoulders. The skirt, full-length, ended in a pointed train. Queen Elizabeth's hat was decorated with apricot and amber-tinted feathers, and she wore the ribbon of the Order of the Garter.

Queen Mary, grandmother of the bride, wore a ground-length dress of aquamarine chenille velvet on a foundation of gold tissue. The sleeves were full, and the gown trailed slightly at the back. Her jewels were a high collar of pearls and a diamond necklace. She wore the Garter ribbon and the star of the order.

Beautiful gowns of silk or chiffon velvet, in gray or green, were the choice of two queens and two princesses, guests from abroad, for Princess Elizabeth's wedding.

Queengrid of Denmark selected a full length gray silk with a short jacket of the same material trimmed with blue fox, and a small gray velvet hat with feathers.

Former Queen Victoria Eugenie of Spain wore a long softly draped gown of chiffon velvet, a sable cape and a small gray hat trimmed with yellow osprey feathers.

JULIANA IN GREEN

Princess Juliana of the Netherlands chose a long soft, silky moss green dress with a belt of golden sequins. She wore a hat adorned with paradise feathers.

Somewhat less formal was the attire of youthful Princess Elizabeth of Luxembourg, a turquoise green crepe de chine pleated and embroidered, of calf length, and a small matching toque and a mink coat.

The Duchess of Kent wore a striking pink and silver brocade gown with full court train, and a hat of pink ostrich feathers.

Queen Near Tears, King Nervous

LONDON, Nov. 20 (AP)—Princess Elizabeth's mother, Queen Elizabeth, seemed at times to be not far from tears but her emotions were always perfectly controlled. A smile rippled her mobile face occasionally.

Her entry was one of the triumphs of the day, and women guests, themselves finely clothed, exclaimed their admiration of her apricot and gold lame gown ending in pointed train.

Watchers noted that the King, in the uniform of Admiral of the Fleet, fidgeted with the handle of his sword or clenched his hands.

For the Duchess of Kent, a widow for more than five years, the ceremony held poignant memories of her own marriage in the autumn of 1934, last previous royal wedding in Westminster Abbey.

Philip Turns Tables On Press Photographers

LONDON, Nov. 20 (AP)—Lt. Philip Mountbatten, Duke of Edinburgh, turned the tables on press photographers last night.

Philip, attending a stag party with some close friends and his uncle, Earl Mountbatten, Governor-General of India, permitted the press to photograph the party drinking beer after a pheasant supper. When they finished, Philip insisted on snapping the photographers.

PRELATE ADVISES PAIR ON TRUE LOVE

LONDON, Nov. 20 (AP)—True love, the Archbishop of York advised Princess Elizabeth and her bridegroom today, "must always be unselfish, and unselfishness is the true secret of a happy married life."

His address to the couple was made after the Archbishop of Canterbury pronounced them man and wife. Love, the Archbishop told them, "must show itself, not only in great moments of heroic self-sacrifice, but continually in all the small problems and incidents of everyday life.

"It means thoughtfulness and patience; ready sympathy and forbearance; talking over and sharing together the special interests and cares which each of you will have. And thus you will learn to bear one another's burdens as you walk on the road to life."

Clare Luce Sees U. S. Point to War

CHICAGO, Nov. 20 (INS)—Former Congresswoman Clare Booth Luce of Connecticut asserted in Chicago today that the United States is heading for a third world war because it is following the foreign policy established by President Roosevelt.

The famous playwright said at a news conference that President Truman's administration has persisted in involving America too deeply in world affairs.

She stressed compulsory military training as a "very foresighted measure" in event of a war she thinks could be avoided by "wise statesmanship."

First Silent Guest Funds Pour Into Plymouth

First contributions in the nationwide appeal to have Christmas observed in the true spirit of the day by having a "silent guest" for dinner were pouring into Plymouth today following Gov. Bradford's personal appeal for funds to provide for starving Europe.

The American Guest for Dinner, Inc., a group comprising the governors of the 48 states and other political and social leaders, hopes to send 3,000,000 tons of food to Europe through donations of $1 or more by a 1,000,000 Americans.

The plan, inaugurated only a few days ago by Iris Gabriel, Hollywood and New York author, is the personal answer of all Americans who wish to help as individuals to relieve the misery of the world, Gov. Bradford said in his address at Plymouth, where the Massachusetts headquarters of the group is located at Memorial Hall.

Standing beside Plymouth Rock, the Governor, quoting from a proclamation issued by William Bradford, governor of Plymouth Colony and his ancestor, urged a sharing of our plenty with people of Europe.

"Everything we hold dear in Plymouth, in Massachusetts, in civilization itself is anchored to the ideals first anchored here at Plymouth," he said.

"It is difficult to imagine enjoying our Thanksgiving without a troubled conscience when we think that across the ocean men and women are starving.

"Give at least $1 to the silent guest plan and only for Thanksgiving, but for Christmas and Sunday, if you can," he concluded.

It is hoped by three weeks before Christmas that the tons of food will be on their way to Europe, to be distributed by Care Cooperative for American Remittances to Europe.

William Brewster of Plymouth national treasurer of the campaign, accompanied the Governor on his tour of that community, showing him the scene of the first Thanksgiving Day dinner.

Italy Government Firm Under Attack

ROME, Nov. 20 (AP)—The Italian left's relentless war of nerves on Premier Alcide De Gasperi's Christian democratic cabinet entered its second week today with no sign of abatement and no hint from the government that it might weaken in the face of the challenge.

Political disorders and Communist-led labor stoppages bubbled up the length and breadth of the Italian peninsula, placing a heavy strain on police forces at the disposal of Interior Minister Mario Scelba, key man in De Gasperi's defense and butt of the bitterest leftist attacks.

Scelba, speaking before the Christian Democrats' National Congress in Naples last night, predicted "difficult days" ahead and added that he did not expect the leftist campaign of violence to cease.

Elizabeth

sacrarium, was the handsome 26-year-old bridegroom, attired in the uniform of a lieutenant of the Royal Navy, in which he served during and since the war.

RITE BROADCAST

In the church, the nave, the choir and the transepts shone with royal magnificence—a scene of high pomp and solemn religion, reflecting gold, purple, crimson and rose shadings from the walls.

Kneeling on pillows on the steps of the red and gold sanctuary, the royal couple followed the Archbishop of Canterbury, Dr. Geoffrey Fisher, through the traditional marriage ceremony of the Church of England.

As Philip and the Princess spoke their responsive "I wills" and repeated their vows to love, honor and comfort each other in sickness and in health forever, their voices were broadcast to a listening world.

JOIN HANDS

King George VI gave his eldest daughter in marriage. Philip joined his right hand with Elizabeth's, and in a strong resonant voice repeated the words:

"I, Philip, take thee, Elizabeth Alexandra Mary, to be my wedded wife, to have and to hold from this day forward, for better, for worse, for richer, for poorer, in sickness and in health, to love and to cherish till death do us part, according to God's Holy Ordinance, and thereto I plight thee my troth."

Philip released Elizabeth's hand. The Princess then took Philip's right hand, and repeated after the venerable prelate:

"I, Elizabeth Alexandra Mary, take thee, Philip, to be my wedded husband, to have and to hold from this day forward, for better, for worse, for richer, for poorer, in sickness and in health, to love, cherish and to obey till death do us part, according to God's Holy Ordinance, and hereto I give thee my troth."

Elizabeth released Philip's hand. Philip then placed the ring on Elizabeth's finger and, repeating after the archbishop, said:

"With this ring I thee wed, with my body I thee worship, and with all my worldly goods I thee endow, in the name of the Father and of the Son and of the Holy Ghost, amen."

The royal couple knelt before the archbishop and the congregation remained standing while the prelate intoned the prayer.

An audible murmur ran through the assemblage as the archbishop pronounced Philip and Elizabeth man and wife.

"Those whom God hath joined together let no man put asunder," intoned the Archbishop.

"Forasmuch as Philip and Elizabeth Alexandra Mary have consented together in holy wedlock, and have witnessed the same before God and this company, and thereto have given and pledged their troth either to the other, and have declared the same by giving and receiving of a ring, and by joining of hands; I pronounce that they be man and wife together, in the name of the Father, and of the Son, and of the Holy Ghost. Amen."

The Archbishop of York delivered his address and the Archbishop of Canterbury gave the final prayer and benediction.

After an anthem by the choir, the entire assemblage joined in the verses of "God Save The King."

Then the royal bride and bridegroom and the members of their families were led beyond the high altar and into the chapel of Edward the Confessor to sign the register. A golden pen was used.

As the ceremonies came to a close, trumpeters sounded a fanfare. A moment later the rich tones of the organ filled the Abbey and, to the strains of Mendelssohn's Wedding March, the royal couple moved with their procession toward the waiting thousands outside.

As Elizabeth and Philip passed King George and Queen Elizabeth, the young Duke bowed and his royal bride made a deep curtsey.

PHILIP AIDS PAGES

Walking past the tomb of the Unknown Soldier, just inside the Abbey's nave, the couple emerged through the great west door to be greeted by the welcoming roar of a mailing jubilant multitude.

Elizabeth, stepping into the coach, paused a moment to fold her train, taking up its ends from the two little pages.

On the short journey to the altar the bridegroom had repeatedly looked back to see how the pages were managing. To help them he deliberately slowed the pace. Standing at his daughter's left the King, in the midst of the ceremony, also stooped once to grasp the train for a moment.

Donning his cap, the Duke took his place beside his bride in the coach, the footmen mounted and the procession began its return to the palace.

The Duke reached out a window and waved at the crowds.

The National Anthem was attended by cheers when the King, saluting, and the Queen left the church.

They were followed by visiting royalty, including King Haakon of Norway, the queen of Greece and the king and queen of Denmark.

BOY KING OBEYS BOBBY

When the boy King Feisal of Iraq emerged a policeman, mistook him for a child, from the crowd and beckoned him aside. Obediently the king followed the bobby's instruction.

As the bridal couple drove under Admiralty Arch, entering the mall leading to the palace, the Princess smiled and waved to the crowds and her husband saluted.

Elizabeth

The cheers kept pace with the procession, rising i nan unbroken roar that echoed over Saint James' Park.

As the coach entered the Palace forecourt both Philip and Elizabeth smiled and waved happily. Inside the gates they were welcomed by the palace staff.

Shortly afterward the King and Queen, followed by their royal guests, returned to the palace for the wedding breakfast.

Unmoving, the crowd hung on, awaiting a balcony appearance of the princess and her dike.

To tumultuous cheers, the bride and bridegroom appeared on the balcony, followed by the King and Queen and other members of the royal family.

STAND ON BALCONY

The bride, still in her wedding gown, stood with Mountbatten for a few moments on the balcony after the others had left.

Her appearance apparently satisfied the jubilant crowd, which had filled up the crescent in front of the palace as soon as the procession had entered the palace gates.

Thus another scene was added to the richly illuminated pages of English history, as two great-great grandchildren of Queen Victoria were linked in matrimony.

Princess Elizabeth and Philip officially are considered to be third cousins, although the distant blood relationship admittedly is complicated in the line of descent.

Actually, they stand between second and third cousinship—a "relatively remote" blood kinship which has linked many partners in royal marriage in Europe in the past.

The ceremony was packed with the ancient symbolism of a thousand years of English history. It lightened, somewhat, the hearts of the princess' millions of future subjects, adding a splash of color and romance to a national life which has become progressively more dreary since the legions of Hitler first threatened Britain.

WHITE ORCHID BOUQUET

Throughout the country, in every town and village and farmhouse and upon the high seas, millions of loyal Britons rejoiced, not thinking of the ceremony as something to be shared only by those comparative few who witnessed it.

Radio and television provided a personal link between the princess and many of her people.

The first thrill of the day came when the Grenadier Guards marched up Buckingham Palace road.

Just before 9 a. m. the bride's bouquet of white orchids was delivered at the palace. The eight bridesmaids arrived shortly after 10 a. m. and went immediately to show their dresses to the Queen before joining the Princess in her private apartments.

A friend who saw the bride during the morning said:

"Her Royal Highness is obviously very excited and happy—she is in the best of spirits."

The Princess went to the windows of the palace several times and looked out at the crowd.

Several hundred persons were permitted to enter the palace forecourt. They included the Sea Rangers from Windsor, girl friends of the bride, and a number of boys from the Duke of Edinburgh's naval station at Corsham.

APPLIED OWN MAKE-UP

As usual, the Princess applied her own make-up. She used a light powder, a little rouge and a relatively dark lipstick—a shade chosen in order not to appear too pale before television cameras.

At 9:45 a. m., two fitters arrived and prepared the wedding dress.

Thunderous cheers arose as the Queen left Buckingham Palace at 11:05 a. m., two minutes behind schedule. With her in her coach, drawn by the Windsor greys, was Princess Margaret. They left at a trotting pace down the mall. Life guards in red tunics, burnished breastplates and white plumes, cantered beside the carriage.

In a second coach rode the King of Norway and the Queen of the Hellenes. The King and Queen of Denmark were in a third carriage.

Queen Mother Mary, in her ancient limousine, arrived at the Abbey at 11:10 a. m.

Promptly at 11:05 a. m., the bridegroom and his best man, his cousin, the Marquess of Milford-Haven, left Kensington Palace.

As Queen Mary walked slowly into the Abbey, followed by the Princess Juliana and her consort, Prince Bernhard, of the Netherlands, a light drizzle started up again.

GUARD OF HONOR

Next came the Duke and Duchess of Gloucester.

At the Abbey door was a guard of honor of service men and women who have been associated with the bride and groom.

Princess Elizabeth walked out of the Palace to enter the Irish state coach at 11:16, while bands played the national anthem, "God Save the King." The King sat at her right.

In a moment of excitement, the crowds broke through police lines for a moment, but were pushed back quickly.

As the carriage procession of the princess and her father, King George VI, left the palace forecourt the cheering rose, mounting to absolute din. The princess waved.

The princess, dignified and serene, wore a diamond tiara, her mother's. She was a lovely figure in flowing white as she sat with head held high, acknowledging the plaudits of the crowd.

The bridegroom arrived at the Poet's Corner door of the Abbey with his best man at 11:15.

The bridegroom's car arrived at the Abbey a few moments ahead of the time scheduled.

"This is a bad show," he laughed, "we must get things right."

A moment later he emerged and, still laughing, said:

"I am glad to see there is a black cat watching the proceedings over there."

A black cat is considered lucky in England.

As the King and the Princess reached the Abbey, another band struck up "God Save The King."

King George, in the uniform of an admiral of the fleet, stepped from the coach first, then helped his daughter to alight. She paused for a moment to look at the Abbey, then entered.

There was complete silence as they entered the west door, then a fanfare heralded her arrival and the procession moved slowly down the nave.

After the echoes of the fanfare died away, the organ began the processional: "Praise, My Soul, the King of Heaven." The voices of the choir blended with the organ in the hymn.

At the steps of the sanctuary the bride was joined by Philip and they stood quietly, waiting for the end of the hymn.

ROYAL POSTMARK

ELIZABETH, N. J., Nov. 20 (AP)—Approximately 1000 envelopes have arrived from all over the world at the post office here for cancellation today, the day of the wedding of Princess Elizabeth and Philip Mountbatten, Duke of Edinburgh.

The envelopes have come from Rhodesia, South Africa, Australia, Cuba, South America, Canada and sections of the United States, Postmaster John P. Leonard said.

Leonard said nine other communities in the nation are named Elizabeth.

Edward, Wallis Given Supreme British Snub

By CHOLLY KNICKERBOCKER

(Registered U. S. Patent Office)

NEW YORK, Nov. 20—Frankly, it is no skin off our back that the Duke and Duchess of Windsor were not among those invited to the Royal wedding. But just put yourself in the Duke's place. Wherever they have been, the D. & D. have been followed by the shadow of the snub. At moments they have been made to feel like a couple of pariahs whose presence might contaminate the purity of the rest of the assembly.

But if the Duchess has been too humble or polite to protest, the holier-than-thou attitude of the British royal family has left many of us stunned, considering that Wallis Warfield Spencer Simpson Windsor's reputation is lily-white when compared to the many rascal and ribald kings and queens who have reigned over Britannia.

SNUB REASON OBSCURE

Not to become tedious by quoting too much past history, let us just recall that Henry VIII, mighty king of England and founder of the Church of England, was married six times and that he not only divorced some of his wives but had them beheaded as well!

With such violent precedent it is difficult to pin down the reason of the Windsor snub. It is one thing to concede that it would have been rather impossible for Wallis Simpson to become Queen of England, and another thing for the royal family to have behaved in a courteous, civilized manner and to have invited her to the wedding ceremony.

We shall not go into lengthy discussions of court etiquette and traditions, either, on whether or not the Duchess should have been treated like a simple duchess or a member of the royal family.

We also dismiss the political consideration that the presence of the ever-popular Duke of Windsor might have created some popular demonstrations, which might even have overshadowed those for their majesties and for the newlyweds. All these are just conjectures.

SNUB OF SNUBS

The fact it that even a court can modernize itself and remold some of its iron rules—especially in a case as extraordinary as this one. If a king can stay on the throne with a labor government in power, why can't an American woman, even though a former divorcee, and now married to the brother of the King of England, show her face in England?

Think how the Duke must have felt last night here in New York. His own blood was being married, but he wasn't asked to witness it, even though complete strangers had been invited.

Whatever the court rules, human rules are always the same, and they apply just as much to the Duke as to anyone else. Sorry, but the snub of snubs has just been consummated in London.

Still, we wish both couples—the Windsors and Elizabeth and Philip—all the happiness in the world.

Dewey Hits Lack of Aid To China

MANCHESTER, N. H., Nov. 20 (AP)—Gov. Dewey of New York today charged the Truman administration with "seemingly abandoning the Chinese to Communist conquest," and asserted immdiate aid should be sent to the Far East as even a two months delay "may be too late."

Making his first comment on President Truman's special message to Congress, the Governor told a news conference he was "deeply disappointed in it" in that "no mention at all was made of China or the situation in the Far East."

"While European aid is urgent," he said, "there is an even more urgent situation in China.

"There the Communist armies are not riding in the streets which is bad enough, as in Italy and France, but they are away ahead of the schedule in Europe.

"The seriousness of the situation is pretty clear when one realizes that while there are 275,000,000 people in Europe who are still free, there are 400,000,000 in China."

Dewey, who is making a two-day tour of New England, asserted "the dollar costs of giving necessary assistance to the Chinese people is a trifle compared with the cost of European Aid."

"Yet," he declared, "the President either did not know of the situation or deliberately ignored it."

Leaving Palace—A huge crowd watches the coach bearing Princess Elizabeth as it leaves Buckingham Palace for Westminster Abbey, where the heiress to the British throne was married to Lt. Philip Mountbatten, the Duke of Edinburgh, in a colorful ceremony witnessed by some 3000 persons.

BOSTON EVENING AMERICAN, THURS., NOV. 20, 1947

STRATEGIC MATERIALS

SENATOR VANDENBERG of Michigan should FOLLOW THROUGH on his sharp notice to the administration that it is going to be HELD TO ITS IMPLIED PLEDGE that the nation's stockpile of strategic materials will be increased in consequence of the proposed European relief program.

In the course of the Senate Foreign Relations Committee hearings on the program, a State Department advisor made a general reference to "studies" being made of the possibility of obtaining strategic materials in partial payment for American assistance rendered to beneficiary nations.

Senator Vanderberg alertly made inquiry if it was the intention to augment the American supply of uranium in this manner, and the spokesman evaded the question by denying his qualification to answer, saying "that is in the higher realms."

The instant response of the Michigan senator was:

"I want you to indicate to those top levels to which you refer that before this show is over WE ARE GOING TO WANT SOME INFORMATION ABOUT URANIUM."

IT IS TO BE hoped Senator Vandenberg will persist in this intention, and that the entire Senate will support him, for it is in the acquisition of strategic materials—particularly of uranium, which is essential to atomic energy development—that the United States has its principal hope and probably its only hope of even partial repayment for the tremendous outlays contemplated.

The lack of strategic materials greatly impeded America in the recent war, and unnecessarily prolonged the war and enormously increased its cost in both wealth and lives.

The American people acutely remember the drastic methods of conservation that were the consequence of this serious and nearly fatal lack.

The almost hysterical salvage campaigns conducted to conserve rubber, tin and many other metals and materials vital in war industry constituted a challenging and alarming phase of the conflict.

Foreign sources of these strategic materials were almost entirely cut off from the United States by the war.

While many thoughtful and informed statesmen had earnestly and urgently warned the country before the war of its virtual destitution in such materials, the United States entered the conflict without the stockpiles that would have been the remedy for that dangerous condition.

IN ANY FUTURE war, a similar lack of strategic materials, especially of uranium, might very well cause the DEFEAT of the United States.

Many of the European countries which are the intended beneficiaries of the contemplated relief program are rich in these materials.

Why should not the United States, which is gravely risking its own impoverishment by trying to act as provisioner and almoner to the rest of the world, require as a condition of its largess that our own critical needs be supplied in return?

Such a condition would enhance the security and strength of the United States, and in substantial degree LESSEN THE PROSPECT OF FUTURE WAR—a boon, certainly, to the whole civilized world as well as to the American people.

It would materially bolster the domestic economies of the recipient nations, by providing them with profitable markets for their resources.

Senator Vandenberg is RIGHT that the United States is entitled to at least partial repayment for European relief in this manner, and he is especially right that the best assurance of getting it is to MAKE IT A PRIOR CONDITION OF ASSISTANCE.

There sits a bird on every tree
And courts his love, as I do thee;
Sing heigh-ho, and heigh-ho!
Young maids must marry.
There grows a flower on every bow,
Its petals kiss—I'll show you how.
From sea to stream the salmon roam,
Each finds a mate and leads her home.
Sing heigh-ho, and heigh-ho!

THERE IS A native of Manhattan who has been ribbing me about the Dodgers since I was 7 years old and he was 8. This may be the long-distance record for ribs. The ribber is my cousin, Harry Robinson. He called me up today to needle me a bit about the Dodgers losing to the Yankees in the World Series. I let him go on with it for a time and then I said: "By the way, are the Giants still in the league?" That set him back on his heels. As a Yankee fan he is just lukewarm but as a Giant fan he is rabid. Of course, I regretted having to depress him, but after all he should know by this time that when you start needling a Dodgers fan you are flirting with dynamite.

PASSING BY: Gloria Swanson. The first Chicago girl to become an outstanding film star. Her first smash hit was in that clever and provocative Cecil B. DeMille film titled "Don't Change Your Husband." I have known Gloria for some time. In fact I remember when she was a Sennett bathing beauty and had only been married once. If you can state who Gloria's first husband was I may be able to get you into the Young Old Timers. Provided you can also recall the name of her second husband.

MULES & MEN: Our Mules & Men experts are continually puzzled by the inability of so many young women to inspire young gentlemen to propose a matrimonial alliance. This bewilderment was recently increased when it was learned one Amalia Salamone, an eighteen-year-old native of Palermo, Sicily, recently made a two-month visit to the U.S.A. and during that brief period received one hundred and sixty proposals of marriages from American young men. Amalia is a nice looking girl but no raving beauty. I have instructed our M & M experts to make an effort to ascertain what this Sicilian visitor has that so many of our American girls seem to lack.

ASKING: Queries from clients. Q. Why don't you ask some of these women who say they "adore" cats why cats torture their prey before killing the poor, miserable, half-dead victims? A. You ask them. I have enough women wanting to slap my face as it is. Q. How far is the Brooklyn Bridge above the water? Do you think it possible for a man to dive from this bridge and live as per claim of Steve Brodie? A. The Brooklyn Bridge channel span is one hundred and thirty-three feet above the water at high tide. Brodie did not claim he dived but alleged he jumped. In 1918, Alex Wickham, at a spot near Melbourne, Australia, is said to have made a dive measuring two hundred and five feet and nine inches.

ALMOST CONFIDENTIAL: This time next year, that is, in the late fall of 1948, women of fashion will be wearing ankle-length dresses and liking them. That's what the Paris designers claim . . . In Switzerland, jam is packed in tubes like toothpaste. It must be an interesting spectacle to see a Swiss kid trying to get the last of the strawberry jam out of a tube. He probably uses a rolling pin or flatiron.

IN OLD KENTUCKY: Ever hear of Almahurst Farm, Lexington, Ky.? That's where the greatest of American running horses and the greatest of all harness horses were both bred. I am referring, of course, to Exterminator and Greyhound. The Almahurst farms, however, did not benefit much financially from the breeding of these two great race horses. Greyhound was sold as a yearling for nine hundred dollars and Exterminator at the same age for twelve hundred dollars.

AMONG THE MARRIED: Did you have a church wedding? Is claimed those married in church have a better chance for matrimonial happiness than those wed elsewhere. How are you doing? Incidentally, Rev. Bryan Green, of Holy Trinity, Brompton, London, recently held a "re-union" service for people married at his church in the last nine years. Over four hundred happy couples attended.

FAIR ENOUGH

By WESTBROOK PEGLER

Copyright, 1947, King Features Syndicate

NEW YORK, Nov. 20—If the working-people, the wage-earners, of the United States, have suffered any loss through the adoption of the Taft-Hartley law, the blame must lie with the great, greedy bosses of the union movement. They had the power to reform the unions, to stop the persecution of individuals, and the harassment of communities by unnecessary and oppressive strikes. They could have abated the robbery of millions of workers through assessments for causes in which they had no interest, for expensive insurance and for undisguised rackets. But, throughout the Roosevelt administration, they refused to drop their selfish politics and answered every criticism and warning with the monotonous cry of "labor-baiter."

Westbrook Pegler

ACTUALLY, the only important baiters of labor during those years were not the National Association of Manufacturers nor any of the journalists or candidates, but some of the presidents and vice-presidents of unions. Jimmy Petrillo by now has convinced himself that he actually does serve his "boys" but, a few years ago, he openly smirked about his holy mission and the enormous proportion of Saturday night saxophonists in his American Federation of Musicians. The union did nothing for them. It merely preyed upon them.

Jimmy's powers are really terrible. Other union bosses have the same powers, but Jimmy's are written out for him in an article of his constitution which permits him to rule absolutely by whim, subject to no challenge or appeal. The cruel gangsters of the Hodcarriers' and the Operating Engineers' unions and some of the machine politicians of the Teamsters exercised practically the same despotic authority but they had to go in for subterfuge and terror, not that this embarrassed those who ruled by these methods. Jimmy's was the only union whose founding fathers had had the gall to spell out the proposition that unionism was a totalitarian racket.

THERE IS no question that William Green, John Lewis, Philip Murray, Dan Tobin, Petrillo, Reuther and Fay, the merciless thug now securely filed away in prison at last, were strong men in unionism. The criticism of these bosses is that they either misued their strength, meaning their force of character as well as their following in goons, to oppress the real workers of the United States, or failed to use it in the interests of reform. Green could have been a great American by now, or Murray, or any of the others, who had been wise and honest enough to say, five or six years ago, "the union movement must make peace with the people and the law of the United States and serve the community in which it lives."

But they missed their opportunity and now the whole lot of them are reduced to howling to the rank and file worker that he is a slave in chains and bleeding from the blows of the knout. But the worker looks at his wrists and sees no bands and he takes inventory and finds no wounds.

On the contrary, he is beginning to realize that he can now appeal to the government to protect him from his union. This is a New Freedom that already had stirred in many men of the Teamsters' Union a spirit of revolution against Dan Tobin, president for 41 years, a longer reign than most kings have enjoyed. It is dawning on the rank and file that they have rights under unionism which they never even dreamed of in the days of Franklin D. Rooseevelt under the Wagner Act, unmitigated. The majority of the union members are of such an age that they began working under Roosevelt and never knew any other condition than the denial of fair trials under law, the large arbitrary fines and assessments, the expensive suspensions and the blast of a whistle in the mouth of some criminal racketeer, calling out a thousand American citizens without a strike vote.

THE MAJORITY of the union workers of today never realized that they actually had rights. But they believed because they had been raised that way, that unions were a private government unto themselves with no responsibility to the nation or the various states.

This is where unionism under Roosevelt and the New Deal tricked and oppressed American labor and finally so provoked the people, including labor, that they turned on the bosses.

And this is where Senator Taft, whatever his future, showed honesty, force and integrity to the chagrin of other candidates for the Republican nomination. On his western trip, Taft was saluted with picket signs calling him a rat. This was an organized display of the brutal vulgarity of an element which for so many years had enjoyed a warrant from Roosevelt to boss and abuse not only American labor but whole areas of homes and industry and to vilify decent men for daring to fight back.

Hollywood

By Louella O. Parsons

NEW YORK, Nov. 20 (INS)—The boys with Communistic ideas are going to find very hard sledding from now on in Hollywood. The producers met last week, and meet this week again, and any writer or director known to have a card or to be involved with the Communists in any way, will sit out his contract. New contracts, of course, will not be made with these pink-tinted gents and ladies.

The FBI has the names of all members of the Communist party and the reason said for not exposing them in the open, is that it is far more dangerous to drive them underground than to let on they have knowledge of their activities. But since the Washington investigation, such secrecy may not be necessary. These Soviet-minded Hollywoodians, who do not appreciate our form of government and our great country, should be forced to live in Russia. They would soon find out what a Communistic country is really like.

After Emma Goldman spouted her theories some years ago, she was sent back to Russia and she lived to regret her failure to appreciate America. She was a very unhappy woman. However the producers must be sure, and they intend to, I know, that the innocent do not suffer with the guilty. Sometimes a man or a woman is labeled Communist when he is not, and is just called that because some malicious person has given him the name.

ANY MOVIE that tells the world about the natural resources of our great country is important these days. That is why I think Walter Wanger's plan to produce a big technicolor film glorifying the Oklahoma oil fields means more now than it might in just ordinary times. "Tulsa" is the tentative title of Walter's picture and it will star Susan Hayward as a woman wild-catter—oil wild-catter? that is.

Susan Hayward

Latest reports from the Hayward-Jess Barker menage is that all is serene since they kissed and made up the second time. Which reminds me, Hollywood couples should cool off before airing their woes everytime they have an argument.

CHATTER IN NEW YORK: I met Lana Turner at the theater last night and she told me that everything is all right between her and Tyrone Power. Lana said she had talked over the transatlantic telephone with Ty, and he told her he will leave for home Monday.

Lana also said M-G-M had called her back and she will leave for Hollywood next week.

Annabella telephoned me to say she had just been in Philadelphia to see the tryout there of Irene Selznick's play, "A Streetcar Named Desire." It's a great triumph, she says. Annabella laughed when I asked her about the Frenchman everyone says is devoted to her.

The Spyros Skourases entertained at dinner at "21" and afterwards took us to see "Medea." In the party were the Orin Root, Jrs., Lana Turner, Celeste Holm, who is here for a short time, and Frances Goldwyn, who sails for England Dec. 12 to spend Christmas with Sam, Jr.

Judith Anderson

"Medea" continues to play to crowded houses. Judith Anderson, in this heavy Greek drama, is on the stage practically every second. She has a strenuous emotional role, and has earned raves from the critics. It was nice, too, to see Florence Reed get such applause.

THE FIRST MARRIAGE of an American girl to a titled foreigner ever to attain headlines was that of Anna Gould, daughter of the late millionaire, Jay Gould. When Anna married Count Boni de Castellane, the description of her wedding occupied pages. I was very young then and remember my mother and my aunt avidly read all accounts of it.

Anna Gould, now the Duchess of Talleyrand, is no longer young, naturally. She was at El Morocco and I have to admit I was thrilled at meeting her. She was having supper with her daughter-in-law and her son, and introduced them. If my mother were here today, this incident would really have thrilled her. In her day romances like Anna Gould's made mighty interesting reading. We didn't have as many glamor girls then.

WHEN I HEARD that Abbott and Costello go to London next spring to make personal appearances at the Casino Theater for $15,000 per week, I said: "How do they get that kind of money out of England?"

The answer is something I didn't know. Money raised for charity can be transferred and Lou and Bud are appearing solely in the interests of the Lou Costello Youth Foundation, the juvenile rehabilitation project closest to their hearts.

Also, it's another way of the English reciprocating for our stars who appeared for their charity fund on the command performance junket.

There's also a chance that the boys may stay over to make a comedy for J. Arthur Rank. Rank has a tie-in with Eagle-Lion, where Bud and Lou are now making "The Noose Hangs High."

SNAPSHOTS of New York and Hollywood collected at random: Brian Aherne, good Englishman that he is, hosting a stay-up-all-night party to tune in on the broadcast of Princess Elizabeth's wedding.

Ruth Warrick's heart belongs to Merrill Pye, which will probably throw Jimmy McHugh into a torch song.

The Edgar Bergens are on their way to Hollywood after a wonderful fling in New York.

Enjoyed "The Winslow Boy" very much. The film rights are owned by Sir Alexander Korda, who plans to make it in this country instead of in England, although he is trying to get some of the original London actors for the picture.

A cable from Loretta Young and Tom Lewis saying that in spite of some 45-foot waves, the crossing to the command performance was wonderful. Most of the Americans were seasick, including Bob Hope, who occasionally lost his sense of humor!

Gloria Swanson, whom I met at "21," could easily pass for her own daughter. She looks so young and is still glamorous plus.

I also met Barbara Bel Geddes and her husband. It's her first time in New York since she deserted the stage for a movie career.

On the invalid list are Mary Pickford and Mrs. Fred MacMurray—both down with sore throats.

Pat and Arthur Lake sent me a note from Florida saying their son, Arthur Patrick, debuted in a few scenes in their picture —"and stole the show."

Happy, happy birthday to my favorite Hollywood banker—popular Chet Vanderlip, of the Bank of America!

The proceeds from the New York Newspaper Women's Club ball this year go to the overseas fund. There is a terrific demand for tickets, what with all the visiting movie stars promising to take bows.

My Boston

THUMBING THE NOTEBOOK: 11 a. m. Mary Robertson, wife of "Chappie," who gave an arm to his country in World War I, phones. One of those get-togethers that the Marines dreamed about in the rat-infested trenches of France in 1918, and on the coral strands of the Pacific 25 years afterward, will take place tomorrow night in the Surrey Room of the Hotel Touraine. It's an installation of the Theodore Roosevelt Detachment of the Marine Corps League. We'll be there and so will many others because "once a Marine, always a Marine."

1 P. M. WE MEET George Akerson on Avery st. George flew that lead plane non-stop from Tokyo to Washington. He informs us that he is executive officer of the Third Bombing Wing Reserve at Bedford Army Air Field and they are seeking recruits. They have all the required officers, as a nucleus, but want enlisted men. Only qualified enlisted members of the Air Reserve are eligible—those who stayed in the reserve when separated from the Army. The purpose is to bring the wing up to tactical strength. If eligible, and interested, you should write to the Commanding Officer, Third Bombing Wing Reserve, Bedford. And the Commanding Officer is Ray Stecker, a West Point All-American, some years back . . . It all sounds like business, if bombing is your business, in event of war.

2:15 P. M. We find Greer Garson at the Back Bay Station. She is leaving for New York and California. She thinks her next film may be "The Nutmeg Tree," a comedy, with Walter Pidgeon. But it may be another Mrs. Miniver . . . "It might be called 'Mrs. Miniver Rides Again,' or something like that," says Greer, with a laugh . . . Greer is grateful for the letters received from New England folk over her operation at Beverly Hospital. And remarks that "Leo, the Lion," (meaning MGM) won't let her roam about the country without an escort. Leo found her in New York recently, alone and insisted she have an escort. So Bob Rogers, an MGM publicity man, steps on the train with her. Lucky Bob . . . With six pieces of blonde baggage, Greer leaves Boston on a car named "Garland," with a huge bouquet of red roses in her arms and a porter rolling the whites of his eyes at her . . . She blows kisses, and is gone, after solicitously inviting Miss Eleonora Sears, the Boston society woman, with whom she has been sojourning at Prides Crossing, to visit her for the Christmas holidays, or any other time.

5 P. M. Gertrude Lawrence on the Shubert stage scales her top hat at the orchestra leader and bounces off-stage. After she has returned for seven bows, we cross the stage and find her in her dressing room . . . She holds court for scores of admirers and then begs for a minute while she "gets dry," meaning wipes the grease paint off. We return and find her snuggled in bed . . . The radio is on, and Gertrude confesses to liking the soap operas. She turns the radio on every morning at 8 a. m. . . She tells us that when she was here in "Charlot's Revue," she stayed at the Bellevue and had a severe cold. So a young Harvard student advised her that playing the saxophone was the best thing in the world to make the lungs strong, and she blew it before an open window until she had—well, in Toronto, the next stop, they told her she had double pneumonia and pleurisy . . . But the student was Johnny Green, who wrote "Body and Soul" and "Coquette" — the songs, not the movies . . . Later in New York Johnny came to her and asked her help, and to this day Gertrude is drawing royalties on "Body and Soul" . . . A good business women, huh? Yes, but a grand guy. And (shush!) her real name is Gertrude Alexandra Dagmar Klasen. She is Irish and Danish Whew!

SIX P. M. Gertrude Lawrence is eating chicken, rice and spinnach from a tray brought in by her Negro maid, who got it in an insulated bag from the Ritz Carlton. The interviewee is getting sleepy and Gertrude, who remembers those days in the Pacific in wartime, and following the troops into Europe after D-Day, turns on her side and drops off, exactly as she does in that very realistic dream that Noel Coward wrote in that beautiful thing called "Shallow Play," as realistic a dream as ever was written . . . But not before she tells us that she has given Noel Coward one of those tiniest portable typewriters and is trying to get him to write her another. Because she and Noel have known each other since childhood, almost since the days when she drew a little card from a weighing machine at Brighton and it said: "A star danced, and you were born" . . . That's from Shakespeare, and it made Gertrude Alexandra Dagmar a star, whom Boston adores.

SEVEN P. M. "Bob" Feeney is dead and we are at his bier at 461 Commonwealth ave. "Bob" was born and brought up in the West End and was a fight fan. When old Sam Langford, the great Negro fighter, went blind "Bob" helped him financially and with gifts of clothing . . . Many another down-and-outer got aid from "Bob" and many an aspiring political light received help because "Bob" organized the Shepherd's Club as a successor to Martin Lomasney's old Hendricks Club . . . He will be buried tomorrow at New Calvary, after a mass at St. Joseph's on Chambers st. Wonder if Old Sam Langford has heard . . . 8 P. M. We called on Dorothy Blaine in Room 626 at the Somerset. In a gold-colored suit, she tells us she is opening in the Balinese Room with a ballad: "You Go to My Head." Life goes on . . . 9 P. M. We meet Nan Blakstone at the Fensgate and watch the two daughters, Mimi and Carol, of Harry Stone, the manager, put on a playlet in the Stones' penthouse. Nan is off to Los Angeles today . . . That's part of one day in a columnist's life! The rest will have to wait till tomorrow.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 20—President Truman came out blithely for return of price controls but d'ya suppose he has any idea where he's going to find a sacrificial lamb to head up a new price control administration?

Since Leon Henderson retired in May, 1943, on the excuse that he had a "bad back," which is plausible because he doesn't have a good front either, there have been no volunteers. In fact, it is generally suspected that all succeeding price administrators were recruited with rubber hoses and lighted matches between the toes.

Paul A. Porter, last of the sacrificial goats, shook with shudders that registered on the seismograph at Fordham University when it was suggested he might be brought back.

"I'm busy!" he shuddered. "In fact I am so bloody busy I haven't time to listen to what you are suggesting.'

Mr. Porter recalled that when he accepted the OPA job in June, 1946, succeeding Life-Is-Chester-Bowles-of-Cherries, who in turn had succeeded Michigan's lame duck Senator, Prentiss Brown, he informed President Truman he felt like a kamikaze pilot. The President patted him on the back and replied that he would be decorated posthumously.

THERE IS ONE thing we can be sure of—whoever the President picks for the job it positively won't be anyone he is considering as running mate for the vice-presidency. An exprice controller on the ticket would be like appointing Typhoid Mary chairman of national health week.

If the President, in desperation at not being able to find a controller, begins looking ungrily at his three closest advisers—Treas. Sec. Synder, Commerce Sec. Harriman and Special Assist. Steelman—you can look for a sudden exodus to the hills on postponed vacations.

THE PRESIDENT'S request to Congress for legislation to restore controls brought back nostalgic memories of the days when we used to pore over OPA releases, trying to figure what in blazes they meant.

It brought back memories of the gladsome day when OPA announced controls had been lifted—in one fell swoop—from canned octopus, sleigh bells from Hawaii, and crepes suzette. And the time when housewives were instructed not to bring in their fat cans on Saturday.

Also that perplexing day of Sept. 28, 1944, when OPA came out with this:

"The maximum price for a sale by a manufacturer, by today's action, is his established maximum price for the shoes with the old bow, if the current cost of the new bow is equal to or more than the current cost of the replaced bow. If the current cost of the new bow is less than the current cost of the replaced bow, his maximum price is his established price for the shoe with the old bow having a current cost next lower to the current cost of the new bow."

Likewise the great and glorious day when OPA ordered a reduction of 12½ cents a can on sardines sold without keys to open the cans. Also when it ordered all retailers of feather and down pillows to send one pillow of each grade they had in stock to Washington—and then discovered there were 22,000 pillow dealers in the country, or enough to fill the Pentagon building with pillows.

Those were the good old days—when OPA issued an order forbidding the slaughter of female steers for 60 days; and then learned to its astonishment that steers do not belong to the fair sex. Ah, those Henderson-Brown-Bowles-Porter memories of yesteryear.

But the President still has his problem of where to find another whipping boy. Or, as the poet says:

He who heads u. OPA
Won't live to fight another day.

AN INCARNATE friend of my acquaintance says he has a plan to get even with Charles Luckman.

"Let's have soapless Saturdays," he leered.

Club Plans Dinner Dance

WITH THE ATTENTION of the world turned on London today, Mrs. Harry Hayward of Boston is disappointed that her daughter, Mary Elizabeth, whose home is in the British capital, is not there to witness the colorful spectacle of the Royal wedding.

Mary Elizabeth, former Boston society girl, is the wife of an Englishman, Mr. H. Bernard de Bruyne. The couple and their children are on the high seas en route to spend some time at their sheep ranch in Patagonia, South America. Steamship accommodations being difficult to arrange nowadays, they had to sail when reservations were available and boarded a ship for Brazil last week.

The de Bruynes spent the war years in England with the exception of a few months in this country when Capt. de Bruyne was assigned to Washington by his government. Their lavish home in London was turned into officers' headquarters and they moved into a country cottage about 20 miles outside the capital. They have two children and the stork is scheduled to pay them another visit in South America early in 1948.

COLORFUL gold invitations printed in navy blue bid members and friends of the Milton-Hoosic Club to one of the gayest parties of Thanksgiving week-end. It will be a dinner dance on Nov. 28. Committee members Mr. and Mrs. Norman Pierce and Mr. and Mrs. Henry Palmer, Jr., are turning the ballroom into an ultra modern night club setting called the Stratosphere Room.

In keeping with the night club motif there will be a cabaret singer, photographer and a glamorous model to sell cigarets. This is the club's first party of the season and those planning to attend include Mr. and Mrs. Vassar Pierce, Mr. and Mrs. Richard Harper, Jr., Mr. and Mrs. Parkman D. Harding, Mr. and Mrs. Roger Williams, Jr., Mr. and Mrs. Clarence B. Higgins, Jr., Mr. and Mrs. Richard Barbour, Mr. and Mrs. Neal Powell, Miss Ann Rock, and Messrs. Charles Roberts, George Hackett, W. T. Dexter and Lewis Clark.

ROUND AND ABOUT: Mrs. Harold Field Kellogg, Jr., walking her dog on Commonwealth ave., looked very attractive in a black suit topped by a leopard jacket, and a wide brimmed crimson velvet hat that matched the color of her bag and shoes. Mrs. Percival Gilbert, Jr., crossing Charles and Beacon, wore one of the new long swing coats with furs and a black beanie to complete her modish costume. Glimpsed Sally Reed picking out her Christmas cards at Biru's and Mrs. Rose Whitman Frothingham having a cocktail with a friend before lunch at Joseph's. Also Mrs. Charles Collens of Newton Centre lunching in a foursome at Joseph's.

Mrs. Percival Gilbert, Jr.

MANY MUSIC lovers have a date for Sunday afternoon to hear Richard Dyer-Bennet, hailed as the 20th Century Troubadour, in his first public recital in Boston. His audience will include Mrs. William E. Ames, Mrs. P. H. Faulkner, Miss Katherine E. Hill, Miss Florence E. Crowther, Prof. Walter H. Gale, Mr. Francis M. Brown, Dr. Samuel L. Gargill, Mrs. Frederick Lamb, Mrs. Henry J. Horn, Mrs. J. Hardy Page and many others.

A FASHIONABLE audience of subscribers to Mrs. William Dana Orcutt's Mornings of Diversion had a peek into the homes and private lives of Hollywood stars yesterday morning. The lecture was by Mrs. Emily Henry Bush of Boston who interviewed the stars at home and made some grand color photographs of them with their children and dogs. Helen Hayes, Gregory Peck, Joan Crawford and Jeanette MacDonald and Gene Raymond are just a handful of the subjects she presented in story and picture.

Mrs. S. Bruce Black, a gay chrysanthemum corsage on her black ensemble, was one of the pourers at the coffee hour preceding the program. Mrs. R. Post Eddy was in charge of the pourers and junior hostesses.

Among the many in the packed audience were Mrs. Charles E. Bacon, whose emerald green suit was topped by a matching hat trimmed with crimson feathers, Mrs. W. Lloyd Allen, Mrs. Robert M P. Kennard, Mrs. L. U. Edgehill, Mrs. Robert Davidson, Mrs. Harold Keller, Mrs. Paul Clark, Mrs. Halfdan Lee and Mrs. Russell Codman, Jr.

TIME TO ENJOY WINE

When you sit down to holiday dinners—enjoy with your turkey either a red table wine (like California Claret) or a white table wine (like California Sauterne). These pure natural wines are simply the fermented juice of vine-ripened fresh grapes, mellowed and brought to perfection by age. That is why they go so well with food.

Serve your table wines without fuss. Simply pour everyone a glassful. Keep the bottle on the table, and refill your guests' glasses as desired. It's extra nice to offer guests a choice of good California red or white table wine.

When you entertain—set out small glasses of California Sherry or Port. California Sherry, amber in color, has a "nutlike" flavor that tastes wonderfully good with appetizers before dinner—or with small sandwiches and cakes at any time. California Port is a richer, sweet red wine delightful served alone. It also goes especially well with fruits, nuts and cheese. Many people like to keep both these popular wines on hand. Lately the U. S. stations have sent out a sprinkle of travelogue and pleasantly informative programs in Russian language, tepid stuff compared with "Muscovite Maggie's" nightly diatribes from Moscow. I quote: "The maniacs of imperialistic America who want to fool Europe with the archconspiracy called the Marshall Plan . . . the bloody fingers of the 50 wealth-greedy capitalists who rule America and need another war to fatten their treasuries . . ." On and on it goes, injections of poison which confuse even the most temperate Germans who wonder why America doesn't make any answer? Q. E. D.—It must be true!

WASTING OPPORTUNITY

"Here we are" growled a CIC colonel at Munich to the writer not long since; "we, the masters of advertising science, the best brains in the world. Yet we stand silent when all we have to do is tell the world the truth about ourselves and what we are doing, while Russia is obliged to resort to lies.

"We are wasting the greatest educational opportunity of the ages. Why? Because of a short-sighted economy—a matter of a few millions of dollars which may later save billions and an ocean of blood. Yet we throw away vastly more money in various European rat holes, like postwar lend lease to Russia! Oh yes! We're still shipping them stuff.

"Countries like Poland, Czechoslovakia, Hungary are restless under the Soviet whip. They're eager to hear some friendly voice. Yet scarcely any echo from outside the Iron Curtain reaches their ears. And all the while one of Europe's most powerful radio stations at Luxembourg is sending out musical piffle and waiting for an offer . . ." The colonel sighed wearily and scrubbed his scalp. "We don't have to answer inflammatory broadcasts with angry answers. Just tell 'em the truth! Tell 'em what we have given for relief, what our international aims are, how ready our people are to co-operate. Rebroadcast some of Molotov's vetc speeches before the United Nations. Such stuff." Then the colonel added the inevitable corollary I have so often heard, "O what's the use?"

REDS BAN TEXT BOOKS

Lately the writer sat in the office of Dr. John Sala, former dean of Christian College at Columbia, Mo., and now director of the German schools in the U. S sector of Berlin. He was explaining the reason why Berlin children have almost no school books 35 months after war's end.

He said, "The Russians insist on slanting all text books in favor of Communistic thought. So they block our efforts to print nonpolitical books and won't even let us use maps to teach geography. Under the quadripartite agreement one veto kills any plan—and that veto is usually Russian.

"Unhappily," he continued "almost all the wood pulp and paper-producing mills are in the Russian zone. So they have plenty of newsprint to supply their subsidized press while we are thinly rationed. Thus, by international agreement which gives all periodicals, regardless of nationality, free circulation between the zones, Russia deluges us with propaganda but refuses to admit even the skimpy papers we are able to produce with our paper shortage. We are plain suckers!"

FIRST FEEBLE PUNCH

Last week, for the first time, the U. S. military government (Information Control) traded its first feeble punch in the one-sided contest. It offered an English-language reprint of an American newspaper series on what occurs behind the Iron Curtain. But none got beyond the Russian border. Being found with one was equivalent to drawing a heavy penalty and the severity of such Russian punishments is something to conjure with. Anyway, few Russians or Germans read English.

During a recent international hookup of America's Town Meeting of the Air, a broadcast which received U. S. Army assistance, a question was asked, "Have the European people access to American newspapers?" and the answer from Frankfurt, "Yes! They can get the Paris editions of U. S. newspapers and the Stars and Stripes." Nonsense!

Truth is that few such papers ever reach other than American residents. Stars and Stripes, official Army newspaper, has a nominal circulation of 75,000 in the German area, about 35,000 less than the total of U. S. occupation troops. Efforts to sell English language newspapers to non-speaking Europeans is abandoned as an obvious failure. And why not?

The writer recalls an intelligent Russian border patrol officer at Hof, Bavaria, who surprisingly submitted to my questioning for publication. He was eager to exchange views, but displayed a primitive ignorance of all American customs, habits and ideals. Yet, at the close of the session, which lasted for two hours and, as far as he was concerned, could have lasted all afternoon, he said, "I wish the Americans would broadcast a Russian-speaking program like BBC does from London. Russians listen eagerly."

I replied, "Our State Department sends a short wave broadcast from Washington. Have you heard it?" He said, "No. Very few Russians can afford an expensive set which picks up short wave."

Thus, while Europe inclines its ear to hear America's voice, we have been virtually silent. Which is why the first feeble whispers which are beginning to come from our national larynx are being welcomed as though they are the start of a mighty shout. It's already half-past-too-late.

We make an attempt . . . but usually the attempt is feeble. It is an abstraction . . . as abstract as the illusion we hold. A few friends get together in mutual admiration . . . and let the rest of the world think what it will.

But that's where the mirror comes in. It is supposed to be used to reflect accurately a woman's appearance . . . but how many women take its message at face value . . . believe what it reveals? Or could it be a mental attitude that beclouds a woman's vision? . . . . .

We don't know whether the guy who invented the mirror had a pet peeve on women and wanted the unattractive ones constantly harrassed by what they saw . . . or adored the beauties so deeply and dearly that he missioned an instrument to remind them of their gifted endowment. However, knowingly or unknowingly, he did womanhood a great and noble service. Too bad they don't avail themselves of its true-blue honesty!

Of course, there's a little of the Narcissus complex in the best of us . . . and a little is not too bad . . . a complex which gives us a secret pat on the back for our own inflated appraisal of our self-acclaimed attraction which may or may not be actual. At any rate it helps to bolster our pride and self-respect . . . and that's good. But since most of us view ourselves with lax and relaxed looks . . . we aren't as scrutinous of our faults as others.

TAKE INVENTORY

So, why not, right this minute . . . yank out the mirror and take inventory of your complexion? Does the loveliness of its texture transmit beauty to the looking-glass? Can you almost SEE how soft, young and translucently vibrant it is? Or do deep lines circle the eyes . . . expression lines droop the corners of the mouth . . . age manifest the advance of years in an etched record of dull, flaccid skin? You can't change the shape of your features . . . but you can change the condition of your complexion.

If these are the unattractive evidences on the surface skin . . . think what the true-skin condition must be . . . the inner layers which control the network of cells and fibres in which the dewy moisture of outward complexion beauty is rapidly becoming depleted the older you get.

If you have reached the age where your age is beginning to tell . . . it is time to take cognizance of an excellent hormone cream . . . one bearing a famous name in the beauty and clothes world. It is high time to replenish the skin . . . repep and rekindle the spark . . . with estrogenics that help to refuel the moisture cells of the elongated fibres which constitute the true-skin. Be active with an active ingredient for your face.

KEEP SKIN FRESH

It is when these network cells become deflated that the outer skin starts to shrink. And that's when this fine-name hormone cream should be used . . . to help remoisture the outer skin to keep it ever dewy, fresh and youthful-looking. The use of hormones in the scientific medical world is reaching new and wonderful heights. The use of hormones cosmetic-wise in intensively fine emollient cream is but one of its splendid discoveries to aid women in their quest for good looks . . . good health

For the name of this active ingredient hormone cream, phone the Beauty Dept., LIBerty 4000, any day except Sunday, or write to me, care of the Boston American, inclosing a stamped, self-addressed envelope.

She Has Others Waiting

DEAR MISS FAIRFAX: Like most girls of my age—I am almost 16—I have fallen in love with a boy, but at times I am uncertain about how I feel. We sit together in the movies now and then and sometimes he acts as if he were a stranger to me. But I know he does that only to spite me. I, too, am cold to him at times.

When I am away from him I get a feeling that I like him, but when I am with him I feel uncertain. I think I should find out whether or not he still likes me, because there are others who are waiting. Please help me to find out just how I rate with him.

"TEEN-AGER"

Dear "Teen-Ager":

The best way for you to find out how you rate with this boy is to go out with some of those others who are "waiting" to pay attention to you. In your present state of mind, the best thing for you to do is to be friendly with everybody and not too friendly with anyone.

Wait for Your Turn to Speak

Be patient . . . your turn to talk will come, will come naturally and in due course. So don't give the unattractive impression that you just can't wait for other people to finish talking until you get in your inning.—MRS. BEECKMAN.

Posture Boosts Clothes

By EILEEN CALLAHAN

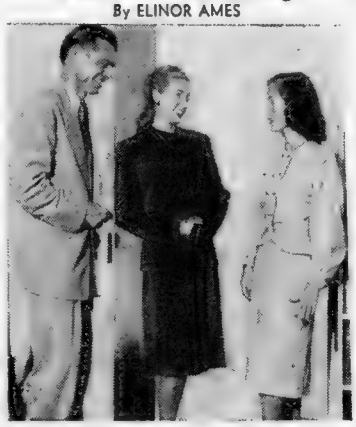
A Goodly portion of the younger set looks as if it were practicing to be turtles. Far too many young girls slouch around with caved-in backs, pushed-out stomachs, drooping arms and heads that seem to be hinged to collapsible necks. It's a posture that no human mother could be proud of in her daughter, although a mama turtle, not being used to a pretty neck, might think it grand.

Besides being deplorable from a medical viewpoint (doctors shudder when they contemplate how the inner organs are contorted), such posture is utterly incompatible with style. Beautiful clothes that were painstakingly fitted to a nicely-stanced figure lose every one of their lovely lines when they are draped over such posture. They would look better on a garden scarecrow at least the scarecrow isn't moving around pretending to be a human being.

Good posture is good sense. It makes the most of your figure and of your clothes, too.

The Correct Thing

By ELINOR AMES



DON'T "DROP IN"!—The unexpected visitor often causes embarrassment and sometimes annoyance to her hostess. The tactful person telephones "I'm in your neighborhood and thought I'd stop in if it's convenient." The person who "drops in" unannounced should not be offended if she's told, "I'm sorry but I am going out in a few minutes."

SATISFIED with the beauty of her lustrous Coro-designed pearl necklace is the model's obvious facial expression. And for our purposes . . . she is satisfactory to look at complexion-wise as well . . . because her face reflects the soft, youthful glow of the throat-line adornment. Like pearls which grow more beautiful with wear . . . beauty should be ageless . . . know no birthdays.

Choice Baked Fish Recipes

By MARTHA LEE, Household Editor

PLENTY OF FISH in the sea ready to be caught! Plenty of fish frozen and in storage, too—all ready for American dinner tables.

In storing fresh fish, it's best not to let a large cut surface come in contact with ice, and best to place both frozen and fresh fish in the coldest part of your refrigerator, well wrapped or in a tightly covered dish. Keep frozen fish in its original container, but wrap it again before you store it.

Here are some delectable ways to bake fish:

BAKED HADDOCK CREOLE

2 lbs. haddock fillets 1 bay leaf
2 tbsp. butter, margarine, or salad oil 1 tsp. salt
1 small onion, minced
½ clove garlic, minced
2 cups strained canned tomatoes
Dash cayenne pepper

Sprinkle the fillets with the salt, and place in a shallow, uncovered baking pan. Melt the butter and lightly brown the onion and garlic in it. Add the strained tomatoes, bay leaf, and cayenne. Let the mixture come to a boil, and pour it over the haddock. Bake in a hot oven of 425 deg. F. for 1 hour. Makes 6 servings.

BAKED FLOUNDER THERMIDOR

1½ lbs. fillets flounder or sole
1 cup milk Speck pepper
¾ tsp. salt 2 tbsps. flour
2 tbsps. butter or margarine
2 tbsps. sherry
¼ cup grated American cheese

Place fish in a shallow, greased baking dish with milk, salt and pepper. Bake in moderate oven of 350 deg. F. for 30 minutes. Meanwhile, melt butter in double boiler, and stir in flour. When fish is done, pour off milk from fish, and add to butter and flour. (Keep fish in a warm place). Cook sauce, stirring constantly, until thickened. Add sherry and cheese, and stir until cheese melts. Pour over the fish; just before serving place under the broiler until lightly browned on top. Makes 4 to 5 servings.

BAKED FISH STEAKS

¼ fish steaks, fresh or frozen, 1 inch thick
¼ tbsp. melted butter butter or margarine ½ tsp. salt
1 tsp. Worcestershire sauce
2 tbsp. grated onion paprika

Place steaks in a well-greased shallow baking dish. Add salt and Worcestershire sauce to melted butter. Pour over fish. Sprinkle with grated onion and paprika. Bake in a moderately hot oven (425 deg. F.) 30 minutes or until fish flakes easily when tested with a fork. Serve with tartar sauce, caper sauce, or lemon butter.

Making sauces is a matter of minutes. For caper sauce, combine salad oil, melted butter or margarine, chopped parsley, lemon juice and capers. A good lemon-butter sauce may be made by adding chopped parsley and lemon juice to melted butter or margarine. To make the ever-popular tartar sauce, add a little chopped onion, minced dill pickle and minced parsley to mayonnaise.

FISH OR SHRIMP SAUCE

Make medium white sauce, adding 1 tsp. Worcestershire sauce and ½ cup canned or cooked fresh shrimp, from which black vein has been removed. Serve with steamed, boiled, broiled or baked fish. Crabmeat may be substituted for shrimp.

Walt Disney, Hollywood's No. 1 cartoonist, and John Erskine, famous author, have collaborated for a feature article on American folklore.

Disney performs the magic of bringing to life, in color cartoons, such folklore figures as Johnny Appleseed, Paul Bunyan and Pecos Bill, while Erskine writes an entertaining account of American folk tales.

Coward Plays Still Please

By PEGGY DOYLE

For the alternate group of three one-acters in the handsome revival production of Noel Coward's "Tonight at 8:30," Shubert Theater playgoers the past two nights have been served up what the author has tagged "an unpleasant comedy" to salt the evening's otherwise light, polite entertainment.

"Fumed Oak" is its title, and a shrill, nagging slattern and henpecked husband, their snivelling, adenoidish daughter and a harpy of a mother-in-law are its characters.

Hattie Carnegie, who did the gowns for the production, doubtless took time off from her glamor-making chores when this little piece of hate was being costumed. Nothing less than a scavenger-hunt, a rag-bag or a rags-old-iron-man's lot could have provided the ragtag garb worn by Gertrude Lawrence, Philip Tonge, Valerie Cossart and North Howard.

Gone and completely forgotten for the play's two-scene duration are whatever charm, elegance, Mayfairish sophistication or appeal any one or all of this talented group possess. It is a field-day of letting-the-hair-down, dropping the aitches and scraping the breakfast dishes into the fireplace. Life can be beautiful, but this relieving departure from such makes very enjoyable entertainment.

On the other foot, the opening one-scene comedy, "Hands Across the Sea," is drawing-room drollery in the smoothest Coward humor and dressed to the teeth.

This is one of the more admired of the nine one-act plays, originally premiered here eleven years ago in groups of threes under the "Tonight at 8:30" title.

Miss Lawrence, in the role she created, and Graham Payn, as her Royal Navy commander-husband, the Coward-originated part, handle the playwright's witty, lively dialogue with dexterity and style.

"Shadow Play," described as a fantasy with music, closes the bill. It is a sort of telescoped "Lady in the Dark."

Elizabeth's Life Story Televised

NEW YORK, Nov. 20 (INS)—An important milestone in the progress of television was achieved today when a dramatic special film depicting the career of Britain's Princess Elizabeth in newsreel form was presented over the television network on the eve of the royal wedding.

The newsreel, which was especially edited and prepared for television by International News Service and International News Photos, showed the attractive princess in various stages of her life, including most recent newsreel scenes in which she exchanged loving glances with her bridegroom-to-be.

Girl, 13, Admits Impulse Killing

BAKERSFIELD, Cal., Nov. 20 (AP)—Sheriff John Loustalot said an exhaustive examination was under way today into the background of Joyce Christine Nichols, 13, a junior high school girl who was arrested yesterday in connection with the slaying of a playmate, Myretta Jones, 5.

Hospital physicians were completing a physical examination of Joyce, freckle-faced bobby-soxer, who the sheriff said made a transcribed statement in the presence of her father and stepmother, Mr. and Mrs. Cal Nichols, attributing the killing to a "sudden, unexplainable impulse."

The sheriff said Joyce talked freely, telling, in substance, this story: "She invited Myretta to accompany her to a cave. She said they played for awhile and then she asked Myretta to disrobe.

"When she refused, Joyce slapped the little girl three times, whereupon Myretta cried, but took off her clothing. Joyce struck Myretta with a jagged rock in a struggle and the little girl's head also was cut when she fell against a shovel."

Huge Mirror Safe Atop Mountain

PALOMAR MOUNTAIN, Cal., Nov. 20 (AP)—The world's largest telescope mirror rested safely in an aluminizing tank today at the observatory atop this 6000-foot peak.

A hazardous 160-mile journey from the optical shop at California Institute of Technology in Pasadena was accomplished without mishap in two days, the last few miles up the mountain amid rain and hail, with visibility reduced to 25 feet.

The 200-inch, 20-ton disc of glass, expected to enable astronomers to probe one billion light years into space, was taken from its packing case aboard a 16-wheel truck trailer and hoisted into the tank. There it will be given a thin coating of aluminum, tested and bolted into position at the base of the 500-ton telescope.

Curley, 73 Today, Nears End of Jail Term

Mayor Curley reached the age of 73 today, but no word of how he celebrated his birthday came from the federal correctional institution at Danbury, Ct., where he is nearing the end of a six-month jail term imposed on mail fraud charges.

The mayor is in good health, Warden Allen L. Shank reported, but no other information was forthcoming. Curley will complete five months of incarceration on Nov. 26 and is expected to be released before Christmas.

Morning Coughs Often Due to Bronchial Asthma

Do you cough and cough, especially mornings and at night? At times do you feel like you were tearing yourself to pieces trying to get rid of strangling mucus and still you choke, gasp for breath, wheeze and often can't sleep? The cause of these devitalizing symptoms may be recurring attacks of Bronchial Asthma. In such cases, the very first dose of Mendaco, a physician's prescription, usually starts almost instantly to help relax that clogged up stuffy feeling in the bronchial tubes, then helps Nature loosen and remove thick, strangling phlegm. This helps you get good fresh air into your lungs and promotes restful sleep. Mendaco is not a smoke, injection or spray, but is a tasteless internal medicine which works thru the blood, thus reaching the bronchial tubes and lungs. Mendaco must satisfy in every way or your money back is guaranteed. Ask your druggist for Mendaco today, and take exactly as directed.

Luckman Quits As Food Chief

WASHINGTON, Nov. 20 (AP)—The citizens' food committee is giving up active participation in the food conservation program it started, but the program—including meatless Tuesdays—will go on.

Officials said the committee, headed by Charles Luckman, will turn the food-saving campaign over to regular government departments, but will continue to offer advice. Luckman, they said, has been anxious to return to his job as president of Lever Bros. Soap Co.

Luckman conferred with President Truman and other administration officials yesterday, and one of those in the know indicated an agreement had been reached on a plan for shifting the emergency program to a long-range o[illegible]

The save-food campaign now will be in the hands of the cabinet food committee, which includes Sec. Marshall, Agriculture Sec. Anderson and Commerce Sec. Harriman.

Maine Couple Fire Victims Second Time

WATERBORO, Me., Nov. 20 (AP)—Mr. and Mrs. Horace McDonald, refugees from the forest fire that swept through this town last month, were homeless again today.

They had moved furniture taken from their razed home into a small apartment over a workshop. The building was destroyed by fire of undetermined cause yesterday. McDonald was slightly injured in jumping from a window.

10 Stern Gang Gunmen Kill 5 Arabs in Reprisal

JERUSALEM, Nov. 21 (AP)—Police said today 10 gunmen, whom they identified as members of the Stern gang, killed five Arabs near the town of Raanana last night apparently in reprisal for assistance which Arabs allegedly gave police in trapping five of their members last week.

WOOL AT WEDDING

LONDON, Nov. 20 (INS)—Beneath those magnificent, bejeweled royal dresses in the Westminster Abbey wedding show today were some light ski-pants and woolens to keep out the London chill.

Some going into the Abbey wore thin wool stockings beneath their nylons.

Some guests also carried a small flask to help keep warm, and at least one American had a hot-water bottle.

But no earmuffs!

Oil Man Plans To Name Horse For Duffy Lewis

By JACK CONWAY

A DAY AT ROCKINGHAM PARK . . . The noble breed of bettors trying to get even as the New England racing season rapidly draws to a close . . . Three more days and the show will be over . . . New Hampshire charities will cut up the profits of today, tomorrow and Saturday . . . If the weather remains good, the charities may receive $75,000 to $100,000.

The public likes long distance races, and followed Qona around the track with enthusiasm as he captured the one one-mile-and-a-half race without too much trouble . . . Irving Gushen has applied to the Jockey Club for permission to name his new 2-year-old Kingy as a tribute to his friend, Dave Wilson, king of handicappers, and who is called "The King" by his pals at the track . . . Kingy's sire is Blenheim 2nd, who was daddy to Whirlaway . . . Jake Freedman, oil man from Texas who has a big stable of horses, intends to name one of his 2-year-olds after Duffy Lewis, traveling secretary of the Braves.

Benny Drohan and Mrs. Drohan took in the races, and had luncheon in the clubhouse with a party of friends . . . Benny was in good voice and entertained members of the press in Col. Dave Egan's office before trying to pick a few winners . . . it is planned to have receiving barns at Rockingham Park next season.

Lou Smith and Mack O'Dowd will represent Rockingham Park at the meeting of the TRA in Chicago on Dec. 2 and 3 . . . members of the New Hampshire Racing Commission will also make the trip to Chicago.

Suffolk Downs' delegation will go to Chicago on the same train with the Rockingham group . . . Narragansett Park has made its own arrangements about the trip West, while Lincoln Downs will not have any representative at Chicago as it is not a member of the TRA.

"N. E. Needs New Horses," says Wilson

DAVE WILSON, packing up for a trip to Florida by way of Baltimore, declared that unless the New England tracks come to an agreement on dates the turf sport will suffer in this section of the country.

"New England needs new racing blood," said Wilson. "The public is tired of seeing the same horses in action week after week. I hope that by next season the local tracks are able to bring new and better horses to New England. The sport is on the downgrade as far as mutuel handles are concerned, and it will require the best in racing to keep up the public's interest."

This writer agrees with Wilson. The long quarantine at Rockingham Park necessarily kept the same horses on the grounds, and the same horses were obliged to compete against each other for a long period of time.

Even before the quarantine much the same horses were parading postward at New England tracks day after day. Many of them have been cheap horses, and there have been numerous startling form reverses.

Leading Stables Seldom Visit N. E.

SUFFOLK DOWNS recognizes this condition, and this is why it obtained the services of Bill Corum. The latter's chief job is to get the better racing stables to ship horses to Suffolk Downs.

In the early days of New England racing, the top stables were represented here. The Vanderbilts and other leading stables seldom come here now unless it is to take a crack at a big purse.

Lou Smith declared he will have sufficient horses for his meetings next year.

"I have always been able to get plenty of horses," said Smith, "and next year will be no exception."

HERE'S ONE!

WASHINGTON (AP)—Jack Hagerty, coach of Georgetown's football team, yesterday told a story which shows one other reason why a coach's life is rarely dull.

The Georgetown assistants were busy, so Hagerty hired a professional scout to peek at a Georgetown opponent, Boston College.

Well, the scout came back with beautiful notes. But, said Hagerty:

"When we began asking questions about players we knew on the B. C. team, the scout was a bit puzzled.

"Then we discovered he had scouted Boston University, not Boston College."

Dartmouth Skiers Compete in Colorado

HANOVER, N. H., Nov. 20 (AP)—Dartmouth College announced today it will send a six-man team to the intercollegiate ski meet at Sun Valley, Idaho, Dec. 27-30.

The trip is made possible by a $1000 gift from Monte F. Huebsch of Milwaukee, Wis., the Dartmouth Outing Club said.

The Dartmouth ski team had earlier received a gift of $1000 from Fred A. Harris of Brattleboro, Vt., founder of the Dartmouth Outing Club, for use in paying for team uniforms.

Most Valuable Player Award to Bob Elliott

By FRED HOEY

Bob Elliott, scintillating third baseman of the Braves has been voted by the Baseball Writers Association of America the most valuable player in the National League. It was the second time in history a Braves' player has been so signally honored. The late Johnny Evers won the honor in 1914 after the Braves took four straight from the Athletics in the World Series.

MOST VALUABLE KISS. Third baseman Bob Elliott of the Braves receives congratulations from his wife, Iva Reah, and a hug from daughter, Cheryl, 3, in their home in San Diego, Cal. Elliott topped the National League poll announced today.

International News Wirephoto

This distinctive award comes as no surprise to fans and writers who followed closely the spectacular work of this big righthander as a power hitter and a third baseman. The only former Boston National League third baseman since the days of the immortal Jimmy Collins who could be mentioned in the same breath with Elliott was the late Tony Boeckel, who, oddly enough, possessed the same great qualities that made Elliott a standout this past season.

Naturally enough the Braves family is happy. To have one of their players so honored not only pleases them immeasurably in a sentimental sense but also from the commercial angle too. Bob is now a rich attraction on the road as well as at home.

Mgr. Billy Southworth of the Tribe, in his long and glorious career has effected many trades. Most of them have been good and some not so good. But when Billy the Kid traded Billy Herman, pitcher Elmer Singleton, infielder Whitey Wietelman and outfielder Stan Wentzel to the Pirates for Elliott and catcher Hank Camelli then he knew the answer. Today's announcement justifies Southworth's judgment.

Bob Elliott is the greatest Tribal favorite since the days of Wallie Berger and the slipping Rabbit Maranville. Elliott spelled the difference between a fourth place team in 1946 and a team that figured in pennant paragraphs throughout the greater part of the last campaign.

When the Braves-Pittsburgh trade was effected it made a deep impression on all other managers. Probably the best and most forceful comment was issued by Mgr. Eddie Dyer of the St. Louis Cards. Eddie said "The trade which sent Elliott to the Braves was one of the smartest of modern times. Billy Southworth and Bob made the Braves a team to be reckoned with at home and abroad." The records show the wisdom of Dyer's words.

Elliott celebrated his debut in this city as a Brave by collecting a home run and a single, batting in two runs and scoring a pair. The next day he hit a home run. Once off to a good start with the Boston fans Elliott solidified his position.

Twenty-four times last season the Braves came from behind to win, and 7 out of the 24 games took place here. In practically every game the big bat and magnet-like glove of Elliott figured in the comeback story.

Bob's own mates refer to him as Mr. Team. Billy Southworth rates Elliott ahead of Whitey Kurowski.

Muncrief, Judnick Traded To Cleveland by Browns

CLEVELAND, Nov. 20 (AP)—Bill Veeck, president of the Cleveland Indians, today announced the trade of right-handed pitcher Bryan Stephens and rookie outfielder Joe Frazier to the St. Louis Browns for veteran hurler Bob Muncrief and outfielder-first baseman Walt Judnich. The Indians also gave the Browns a "substantial amount" of cash in the deal, Veeck said.

Judnich, 30-year-old left-handed thrower and batter, was transferred from his usual centerfield post last season to play first base for the Browns. He achieved a .262 batting average.

Muncrief, 31-year-old right-hander, nursed a sore arm most of last season and had his best year with St. Louis in 1945, when he won 13 and lost four.

Stephens lost nine games in succession last season with the fourth-place Indians and finished with a lowly 5-10 record for one of the poorest standings on the Cleveland mound staff.

Frazier joined the Indians for a few games at the end of the season after playing with their Oklahoma City farm in the Texas League. A left-handed hitter, he clubbed .300 with Wilkes-Barre, Pa., in 1946 for his best season.

The amount of cash involved in the deal, the third player transaction in which the Browns have participated within a week, was reported to be $25,000.

In earlier deals with the Boston Red Sox, the Browns peddled shortstop Vern Stephens, pitcher Jack Kramer, infielder Bill Hitchcock and hurler Ellis Kinder for a total of 10 Boston players, plus cash estimated to aggregate $375,000 for two transactions.

Commenting on today's swap, Veeck said "I'm sure we did ourselves some good for 1948," and added, "in the long run, we may regret the trade."

"But those two Boston-St. Louis deals announced earlier this week have changed the perspective all through the league," he continued. "We can't concern ourselves about catching up with the Red Sox two or three years from now. We have to give them a battle right now, or the American League race will become a joke.

The Tribe president also reported he had conferred with Manager Steve O'Neill of the Detroit Tigers, but added, "If we do business with Detroit, it probably will be on a minor scale."

Leafs Must Forget They Won Last Crown

By BILL GRIMES

Before his club was smacked down 7 to 2 and knocked out of first place last night by the Bruins, Coach "Hap" Day of the Toronto Maple Leafs, admitted that his boys were not playing as well as they did a year ago.

"We haven't been going well this fall" Day stated. "With a few favorable breaks, the Bruins would have beaten us badly in Toronto but we were lucky and came out with a tie.

"As you know, Major Smythe gave the Leafs a very drastic shaking up just before the start of the 1946-47 campaign" continued Day. "He turned loose most of the veterans, some of whom were our key men. He went all out for the youth movement. And, we wound up with the youngest team in the league.

"Due to the pre-season shake up, there was hardly any Leaf who felt that he had a worthwhile lien on his job. So, we had a fighting club, which, despite its youth and inexperience, went through and won the Stanley Cup.

"Well, I guess it does something to hockey players when their teams win the world's championship. I've seen it happen before. The boys get a trifle too cocky and do not give it the old college try. Then, too, they read their press notices, which convinces them that they are indispensible.

"I'm trying to convince the Maple Leafs that this is another season and that unless they go out and hustle they'll have trouble getting into the play offs.

"I'm satisfied from what I've seen, even at this early stage of the race, that the National Hockey League is back on its pre-war basis. And, that means that few if any, 18 or 19 year old kids are coming into the league and set it on fire. It's a long stride from the minors to the NHL today. So, you can figure it out for yourself what it now takes to jump from the amateurs to the NHL.

"In my opinion, the Bruins have two fine young recruits in Eddie Sandford and Ed Harrison," concluded Day. "They came up from the junior ranks. So it isn't fair to expect them to star in this competition. But, if the fans are patient, Sandford and Harrison will make the grade."

After the game, we met Coach Day while he was waiting for his players to dress and get to the South Station, where they caught the 11 o'clock train for home.

"How do you think the Boston fans feel about Ezinicki, now?" he asked. "I didn't think he did anything which would or could be criticized."

And, Day was right. Ezinicki was a perfect gentleman last night. He wasn't in any jams and didn't even retaliate when Clare Martin dumped him hard in the final period. But, Ezinicki's playing wasn't up to par. He was just another "Joe."

Layoff Beneficial to Bruins

NOTES — Judging from the form displayed by the Bruins last night, Coach Clapper used excellent judgment when he had the squad lay off for two days after the defeat by Detroit. Apparently, Clapper is satisfied that the Bruins are in shape. After the game, he stated that he didn't know when he'd order another practice session.

The Maple Leafs had a decided edge on the Bruins in the first period and but for Frank Brimsek would have sewed up the game in that chapter. "Brimmy" made at least three saves, which were really something out of this world. Harry Watson, Nick Metz and Syl Apps all beat the Boston outer defense but they couldn't beat Brimsek.

During the first period, Brimsek was bothered by flash bulbs of a photographer, who was making "stills" from the basket in front of the press box. He lost a couple of high shots in flight.

Just before the close of the period, Coach Clapper spotted the "flashes" and sent word up to Tommy McCarthy to have the "pixman" call it a night, which he did and the Leafs were blanked for the remainder of the game.

Bill Barilko is a native of Timmons, Ont. He's a rugged kid and under Hay Day should develop into a great defenseman. He was picked up a year ago by Toronto while playing Junior B hockey and sent out to Hollywood but was recalled before the Stanley Cup series.

Incidentally, "Hap" Day insists upon calling Barilko "Baroko."

Coach Terry Reardon and eight of his Rhode Island Reds watched the game, from various points of vantage.

Woody Dumart, Milt Schmidt and Don Gallinger each picked up three points, Pete Babando, Wally Wilson and Ed Harrison were credited with two apiece, while one went to Joe Carveth, Eddie Sandford and Billy Taylor —a total of eighteen.

Norwegian Champion Here For His Heavyweight Test

Harry Bernsten, Norwegian heavyweight boxing titlist, arrived in Boston last night for a last minute tune-up before his bout tomorrow night with Jimmy Lake, Canadian Air Force champ, at Mechanics Building.

Bernsten arrived on the 8 o'clock train last night with his manager, Matty Herbert who promoted boxing with the late Jimmy Johnston in New York city.

The Norwegian heavyweight has been working out of New York during the past two years. In that time he has had 27 fights and has won 17 of them by knockouts. The tall, 6 ft. 2 in. blond boy, has a strong punch.

Lake will arrive with afternoon. Jimmy last appeared in Boston a year ago when he knocked out Earl Evans in two rounds.

Al "Red" Priest and Ralph Zannelli are finishing up their training routine for Monday night's Garden fight for the New England middleweight boxing championship.

Zannelli, an oldster of 32, caused quite a stir a few weeks ago when he won 11 of 12 rounds to take the title away from Priest. The Cambridge Red Head has been doing a lot of hard work and may be an even money shot by ring time.

Jackson's Condition Vital to Yale

One of the big questions being asked Coach Howie Odell by Eli rooters this week is whether Levi Jackson, heralded freshman sensation of a year ago, will be up to the form which made him the most dangerous runner in the Yale backfield last fall.

The 190-pound fullback, who runs with all the speed of a rabbit, has been slowed down with a succession of injuries this season. Before the season even started, he received some painful rib contusions in a scrimmage with Army. A week later he suffered a bad ankle sprain.

Playing for the first time against Cornell, he was smeared on his initial ball-carrying attempt. The big Negro suffered a concussion which sidelined him for both the Columbia and Wisconsin games. His bruised ankle is still bothersome and has robbed him of much of his '46 flash.

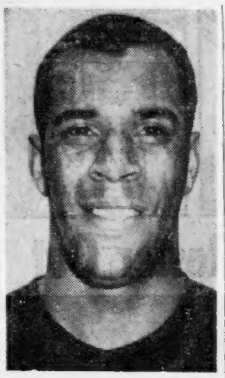
Last fall it was Jackson who was the ground spark of the Eli attack. Although stopped in the first period of the Harvard clash last fall, he later showed local fans the talent that made him a possibly for All-America honors.

The 21-year-old speedster hails from New Haven, Ct., living only a short distance from his college. Exceptionally fast for his size, Jackson uses his blinding speed and shifty stride to run up most of his yardage. He is a power runner and can hit the middle and the ends equally well.

A report from New Haven this week stated that the big fullback ran wild in a rugged practice session this week and for the first time this year showed the form that made him one of the best running backs in the country last fall.

It is the combination of Nadherny, Jackson, and Furse that makes the Yale offense so powerful. When all three are right, an opposing line has got to be honest and play all three of them. Nadherny hits the line with all the force of a bulldozer. Jackson sweeps the flanks with deceptive speed. Furse is one of the best passers in the East.

When the two runners are in good form, the Eli offense is tops.



LEVI JACKSON, the flashy Yale back is expected to show his usual spectacular stuff against Harvard in Saturday's battle.

Because they have both been hampered by recent injuries, Harvard chances for a win are at the highest point they have been all season.

Another back who might very well do the Cantabs plenty of damage is big Jim Fuchs, 205-pound plunger from Chicago, Ill. Fuchs has filled in for Jackson at the fullback slot. He did most of the work on the ground against Cornell alternating on straight line bucks with Nadherny. Only a sophomore, Fuchs is being groomed for plenty of action in his remaining two years of football under Odell.

Coach Dick Harlow has been grilling Emil Drvaric in his point-after touchdown kicks this week.

Hornets Have Won 14 in Row

The Pittsburgh Hornets today were proud possessors of a string of 14 straight games in which they have not been beaten.

In winning their 11th game last night against one defeat and three ties in 15 starts, an 8-2 triumph over the Rifles in Springfield, the Hornets increased their Western Divisional lead in the American Hockey League to three points over Buffalo and Indianapolis. The Bisons and Capitals, both idle last night, are tied for second.

Billy Benson paced the Hornets with three goals, for the hat trick. Jack O'Flaherty contributed five assists.

The Hershey Bears rallied in the final period to come from behind and defeat the St. Louis Flyers 4-2. Trailing 2-1, the Bears counted three times in the last session, Lloyd Gronsdahl netting the tying goal and Paul Ronty the winning one. The victory enables the front running Bears to open up a three point bulge in the Eastern Division.

A flurry of four goals in the second stanza broke a 1-1 tie and gave the Philadelphia Rockets a 5-2 triumph over the Cleveland Barons.

Sadowski Second in Scoring

NEW YORK, Nov. 20 (AP)—Joe Fulks, whose record-breaking 1389 points enabled him to win the individual scoring championship of the Basketball Association of America last year, is the No. 1 glamor boy of the harwood again this season.

Through games of Nov. 19, the Philadelphia Warrior's angular pivot shot artist, in his first four games for the league champions, has tossed in 97 points, an average of 24 per game, to lead his nearest rival, Ed. Sadowski of Boston, by a comfortable margin.

Sadowski, giant center of the Celtics, has netted 70 points in four games to place second, two points above the 68 total of Stan Stutz of the New York Knickerbockers. Fred Scolari of Washington was fourth with 58 points followed by Red Rocha of St. Louis with 55. Rocha has played only three games.

Fulks had made the most baskets, 31, and the most free throws, 35. He also is tied for the most points in a single game this season with Sadowski, Rocha, Stutz and Max Zaslofsky of the Chicago Stags. Each has made 26 points in the contest.

The player roster of the Catholic League All-Stars was completed this morning. The team will begin practice shortly for the post-season football game with the Boston School All-Stars which will be played at Braves Field on Dec. 6, a Saturday afternoon.

Malden Catholic and Keith Academy, the two most powerful Catholic League teams dominated the squad of 33 men. The Malden school landed seven men on the squad. Keith placed five men on the coveted eleven.

It was only right that Malden Catholic should have the most representatives for they have won five games in six starts this season. The only M. C. defeat was suffered against powerful Class A Leominster, 6-0.

All-Star head coach, Johnnie Prior, Malden Catholic, will have some great high school football material with which to work. Prior will be assisted in the coaching department by Jack McCarthy, Cathedral, and Spencer Sullivan, Keith.

The Catholic squad has four team captains, and five co-captains. The captains are, Bud Opperman, St. John's; Al Flanagan, St. Mary's of Brookline; Bob Lovely, St. James; and Charlie Cullen, St. Clement's. The co-capts. are Ronnie Bennett, Immaculate; Frank Griffin, Malden Catholic; Joe Shea, St. Patrick's, Waltham; Mal Cook, Keith; and Al Miller, also Keith.

Cook had sparked Keith to four straight wins before being dumped 20-0 by Lowell. Keith later lost to Malden Catholic by the same score.

This is the first post-season football game to be played in Boston proper. The game is being directed by Joe McKenney, physical director of the Boston schools, and Rev. George Dowd, CYO director.

The Catholic-Boston game will draw one of the largest crowds ever to see a high school game at Braves Field. The game is a "natural" so far as rivalry is concerned.

The complete squad is as follows:

Backs—Ronnie Bennett, Immaculate; Joe McAllister, Mission; Frank Griffin, Malden Catholic; John Aiello, Christopher Columbus; Joe Shea, St. Patrick's (W); Bob McCue, St. Charles; Mal Cook, Keith Academy; Miles Murphy, St. Mary's (B); Don LaBossiere, Malden Catholic; Dick Nissi, St. James; Bob Meehan, St. Mary's (B); Fred McOsker, Keith Academy; Bill Kierstead, Malden Catholic; Tom Cassell, St. Clement's; and Rusty Miller, Keith Academy.

Tackles — Bob Lovely, St. James; Dan Sullivan, Cathedral; Charlie Cullen, St. Clement's; John Donelan, Malden Catholic; Arthur Hickey, St. John's.

Guards—Don Kass, St. Charles; Paul Dumas, Malden Catholic; Don Smith, Our Lady's; Phil DiSario, Malden Catholic.

Centers—John Sullivan, St. Columbkille's; John Smith, Malden Catholic; and Joe Alarie, St. Mary's (W).

Gil Dodds to Train at BC

Gil Dodds, dean of the milers in the United States, will report to Boston College's track coach Jack Ryder after Christmas to start training for the Olympic trials.

"Received a letter from Dodds," said Ryder, recognized as the leading track coach in the nation. "He says he'll probably arrive here in Boston Dec. 27."

"I expect Herb McKinley to be here around April," continued Ryder. "He'll be getting in shape for the Olympic trials, too. McKinley will probably run for Jamaica," continued Ryder. "I think they're going to have a team from Jamaica. That's his home you know. He's a British subject."

McKinley was trained by Ryder and was just beginning to develop into a standout runner when he transferred to the University of Illinois. While in the Midwest he established all kinds of records and the credit for them went to the Illinois track mentor while Ryder was forgotten. McKinley, however didn't forget him and it's a tribute to the genial track mentor that both Dodds and McKinley are returning for instruction.

"Have a couple of boys here who might be able to qualify for the Olympics," continued Ryder. "Jim Taylor is a pretty good halfmiler while Irving Howe's a good 440 man but he's pretty young."

A colored lad who ran for English High last year, Howe's not yet 18 years old. He was All State 440 champ last season.

"I think Carl Joyce stands a good chance of making the Olympic team, too," said Ryder. "He's down at Seton Hall now. He could run either the 800 meter or the 1500 meter and do pretty well," he concluded.

Workmen are busy installing the 12-lap board track on Alumni Field. The turf is getting out of shape and Ryder's track candidates will be able to work better when work is completed.

ED RYAN the St. Mary's end is expected to be extremely busy Saturday against Boston College when he starts receiving passes from Herman Wedemeyer, the Gaels' flash.

Stautner May Face Gaels

There's a possibility that Ernie Stautner will be able to play against St. Mary's Saturday, declared Coach Denny Myers today.

"He was released from the hospital early this week," said Myers, "and if he shows signs of being in shape, we'll use him."

Stautner, nicknamed "Horse" because he's a glutton for work, thought that he might be able to be ready in time for the Gaels. "Lost 10 pounds in the hospital," said the broad sophomore tackle as he stepped on the scales in the club house and watched the indicator stop at 235. He's listed as 215 pounds in the program.

Watching movies of the Tennessee game, Myers was asked if he contemplated any changes in the B. C. lineup for the St. Mary's game. "We'll use the same offensive setup," he replied, "but I plan to make a few alterations on the defense."

"Jackie Farrell probably will be used more frequently this week. If we receive I'll use Farrell, Al Cannava and Bernie Lanoue to run back the "kickoff," continued Myers.

Practice sessions indicate that Myers will rely on his taller backs on the defense. His most permanent defense setup this week has had Ed Clasby, the Songins, Fred and Ed, Tom Brennan and Jackie Farrell.

Backs such as Joe Diminick and Jim Benedetto, both of whom stand 5-8, probably will see no action on the defense. Their lack of height is a definite disadvantage when the other team is tossin' 'em.

St. Mary's arrived in the Hub at 9:35 a. m. today at the East Boston Airport. Thirty-two Gaels made the trip from Frisco aboard a chartered TWA plane. They're staying at the Statler.

Included in the entourage was Charlie "Spike" Coreido. This 155-pound halfback who stands merely 5-5 was injured in the Gaels' opener against Portland U. and has not played since. His presence will greatly boost St. Mary's stock.

He teamed with Wedemeyer in sparking the Galloping Gaels into the Sugar Bowl in 1945 when both were freshmen.

TWO PERFECT SCORES

PHILADELPHIA, Nov. 20 (AP)—Two bowlers on opposing teams rolled perfect 300 scores in the same game here. Johnny Beans, of the Phillies Cigar team, was the first to come through with a perfect score and Al Di Giacomo, of the Orsatti Beer team, followed a few minutes later. It was the first time either had scored 300 in a match.

B U Seeks Scoring Mark Against Colgate

Boston University's Terriers will be striving to set a new season scoring mark when they tangle with Colgate's "Red Raiders" at Fenway Park Saturday. The present record of 183 points was made last year, but the current Terrier aggregate has already tallied 176 this season, and two touchdowns against Colgate will set a new high.

Despite a potentially powerful squad the Raiders have been a hot and cold club all year. In seven games, they have been beaten by Cornell, Princeton, and Penn State and have earned ties with Brown and Holy Cross. Their lone victory of the campaign was at the expense of a weak King's Point, and last week they were shut out by a mediocre Syracuse eleven.

Coach Paul Bixler's offense is built around the two extremes of the squad. Glen Treichler, 165-pound scatback and aerial artist, who does most of the running and heaving, and Frank Muelheuser, a 220-pound plunging fullback.

Treichler is the speed king of the Colgate squad, while Muelheuser is the most consistent ground gainer and workhorse of the team. The burly fullback also handles the punting for the Bixler aggregation.

Three other prominent members of the Colgate playing cast hail from the Bay State. Bob Leary, an Arlington product, who operates at either wing post, is the leading Raider pass receiver, and Foster Hoff, Turners Falls, has been the starting left tackle in the last two games. Jack Baumann, Marblehead, is the defensive left half.

In addition to the Colgate and BU bands, there will be 30 high school bands from different parts of New England participating in a musical pageant starting at 1:10 p. m.

This inauguration of an annual "High School Day" is another of Coach "Buff" Donelli's novel ideas. Hundreds of high school players from all over New England will attend the Terrier finale as guests of Boston University.

At the last count, over 5000 high schoolers had applied for admission to the game . . . The Terriers should be at full strength for the affray, and Larry Kirkman is the lone member of the squad who is not in top shape, although he is expected to see action . . . Capt. Don Giles is the only Terrier who will be playing his final game . . . The rest of the team will be returning next season . . . Bobby Hatch continued to lead the Terriers in scoring and total offense . . . He has tallied 6 TDs and has a 7.9 rushing average.

Raines Stand-in For Two Eli Backs

NEW HAVEN, Conn., Nov. 20 (AP)—Bob Raines, the divinity student from Minneapolis, today loomed as an important cog in the Yale backfield as Head Coach Howard Odell put the Elis through their final heavy practice licks in preparation for Saturday's game in the Bowl at Harvard.

Odell named his starting backfield as Tex Furse at quarter, Ferd Nadherny and Art Fitzgerald, Halves, and Levi Jackson at fullback. Behind this quartet, however, stood Raines, who has been prepared for a dual role all week.

The Minneapolis speedster will be the first line stand-in for both Nadherny and Jackson.

DARTMOUTH PREPARED

HANOVER, N. H., Nov. 20 (INS)—The Dartmouth Indians worked out lightly today after holding their final scrimmage of the season. The squad went over assignments and made ready to depart for Princeton.
